From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1871.

The Legislature assembled at 11 A. M., all the members elect of both Houses being present except Senator MURPHY, of Brooklyn, who is detained at home by sickness in his family. Lieut.-Gov. BEACH made a pretty speech at the opening of the Senate, in which he alluded in appropriate terms to the decease of Senator HOYT during the recess. After the adoption of a resolution to adjourn from Wednesday over to Monday next, the Senate took a recess to await the organization of the Assembly.

THE HOUSE—MR. HITCHMAN'S HARANGUE.

Nearly two hours were occupied by that body in swearing in members, and electing Speaker and other officers. Speaker HITCHMAN'S speech on assuming the chair will disappoint no one who remembers his extraordinary harangue on a similar occasion last year. His transfer by the Ring from the Board of Education to the Fire Department in New-York does not seem to have improved his temper or his sense of propriety. He still thinks it the mission of the Speaker of the New-York Assembly to regulate the affairs of the United States Government, and to criticise the laws of Congress. The venomous tone in which he performed this duty, to-day, is sufficient proof that the Congressional law, which he so violently attacks, was effectual in preventing Democratic fraude at the last election.

"MILITARY INTIMIDATION."

Both the Speaker and the Governor, whose province he usurped in his criticism, find it necessary to misrepresent the object of the law, which, as every one knows, was intended solely to prevent frauds upon the ballot, and has nothing to do with the Fifteenth Amendment. It is a little remarkable that with all their nonsense about "interference in elections" and "military intimidation," neither HOFFMAN nor HITCHMAN had a word to say about the only real "outrage" perpetrated at the November election in New-York, viz.: the "counting out" of HORATIO N. TWOMBLY, the Republican Assemblyman elected from the Seventh District. Had it not been for this high-handed knavery, HITCHMAN would not have had the chance to utter his philippic from the Speaker's chair, nor would HOFFMAN'S Message have been ordered printed in German, in order that its falsehoods and misrepresentations might be more widely circulated to the prejudice of the Republican Party.

THE TWOMBLY CASE.

After the reading of the Governor's Message, an effort was made by Mr. GLEASON to get a special committee appointed to investigate the Twombly case, but the Democracy voted it down. Tammany is anxious to suppress all investigation into this case, and it is doubtful whether two Democrats can be found in the Assembly honest and independent enough to refuse to do the bidding of the New-York Ring. TWOMBLY'S chance of getting the seat to which he is so justly entitled may, therefore, be regarded as exceedingly small.

THE WESTCHESTER ANNEXATION JOB.

In the Senate, after the recess, several important bills, or notices of bills, were introduced. Among them was the long-talked-of bill for annexing a part of Westchester County to New-York, introduced by Senator GENET. Senator CAULDWELL, who represents Westchester County, also gave notice of a bill "to annex New-York to Morrisania," from which it would appear that the annexation job is represented by divers interests. Between them all the chances are that the whole scheme will fall to the ground.

AN ELEVATED RAILWAY.

Senator NORTON gave notice of a bill for an elevated steam railroad in New-York, to be constructed east of Broadway, and to pass between the blocks, the company buying the right of way. Something of this kind, it will be seen, is recommended in the Governor's Message. The bill is not yet drawn, but the plan is understood to embody the main features of SWAIN'S "two tier" railroad scheme, which was before the Legislature two years ago.

TWEED'S LAKE.

Senator TWEED gave notice of a bill to authorize the City of New-York to negotiate for real estate to furnish an additional supply of water to the City—which means the purchase of Mr. TWEED'S $25,000 lake up the river which he bought last Summer. He is the owner of two lakes which may be made available for increasing the supply of Croton, both of which, he says, he will sell to the City at cost price to himself, viz., $30,000, although he claims that they are worth $76,000. Credat Judæus!

CHANGES IN THE SENATE CHAMBER.

Under a restriction passed at the last session, there has been an entirely new arrangement of seats in the Senate Chamber during the recess. Instead of the desks being arranged in a single circle, as heretofore, there are now three rows, one behind another, as in the United States Senate Chamber. This is not regarded as an improvement by many Senators, although the majority approve it. The President and Secretary have also been supplied with new desks, arranged on the plan of the Speaker's desk in the Assembly.

PERSONAL.

Gov. FENTON is still in town, but starts for Washington to-night. Among the arrivals to-day are H. N. TWOMBLY, the contestant of CAREY'S seat, and Hon. THOS. E. STEWART, his counsel. S.

THE ANNEXATION SCHEME.

Senator Genet's Bill to Annex Westchester County Towns to New-York.

Senator GENET'S annexation bill, introduced yesterday, is entitled "an act to set off certain towns from the County of Westchester, and to annex such towns to the County of New-York, and to extend the corporate limits of the City of New-York over said towns."

The bill provides for the annexation of all that part of the county bounded northerly by the northern boundaries of Yonkers, East Chester, and New-Rochelle, easterly by the eastern boundaries of New-Rochelle and Pelham, southerly by the southern boundaries of West Chester, West Farms, and Morrisania, and westerly by the western boundary of Yonkers, including Yonkers, Morrisania, West Farms, West Chester, East Chester, Pelham and New-Rochelle, "for all purposes except political, and for the holding and jurisdiction of Supreme and Circuit Courts and Courts of Oyer and Terminer, until the State shall be redistricted under the next State census or enumeration, and thereafter for all purposes whatever." It shall be designated City of New-York, Suburban Section. Yonkers shall be known as Ward 23; Morrisania and West Farms, Ward 24; West Chester and East Chester, Ward 25; and New-Rochelle and Pelham, Ward 26. At the next State election there shall be elected for the City, and embracing the West Chester territory annexed, seventeen Aldermen instead of fifteen; and from the new Wards 23 and 24, one Assistant Alderman, and from the new Wards 25 and 26, one Assistant Alderman. Wards 23 and 24 are constituted the Tenth Police Justice's district, and Wards 25 and 26 the Eleventh, and at the next November election Police Justices shall be elected for each of these districts. These shall comprise the Tenth Justice's district, and a Civil Judge shall be elected for it at the same election.

For public educational purposes the new territory shall remain under the control of the several Boards and officers existing therein by virtue of the general Public School act, or any special act incorporating a school district within the same until Jan. 1, 1872, and thereafter in the control of the Board controlling the schools of New-York. At the November election next five trustees of common schools in the new wards shall be elected; they shall have powers like those of the present school trustees of New-York; on the 1st of January, 1872, shall, in the presence of the Clerk of the Board of Education, draw lots for terms of office respectively: for one, two, three, four and five years; and at the next election one trustee shall be elected for each ward for the full term of five terms. All school property owned or controlled by the towns on Nov. 1, 1871, shall merge and vest in the corporation of New-York on Jan. 1, 1872. No change will be made in the Congressional, Senatorial and Judicial Districts until the State is redistricted under the next State census or enumeration. The returns of elections for all officers except State Senators, Assemblymen Supreme Court Justices and Congressmen shall be returned to the County Canvassers of the City and County of New-York; but in all elections in the new territory the provisions of the New-York election law shall apply.

Three Commissioners, to be appointed by the Mayor, sixty days after the passage of the act, shall superintend the copying of all records, papers, and such portions of the books as relate to or concern the real estate of the towns in the respective Clerk's, Register's and Surrogate's offices in Westchester County, including its docket of judgments therein; and these copies, after being duly sworn to, shall be deposited in the clerk's, Register's and Surrogate's offices of New-York, and shall thenceforth be accredited in all Courts and places of evidence, and have the same force and effect as the originals.

The faith of the City of New-York, as heretofore existing, and of each of the towns added, respectively, and the property belonging to the City, as heretofore existing, and to each of the towns respectively, are pledged for the final payment of all moneys heretofore borrowed or raised by the City or towns respectively under or by virtue of any law of this State; and until these sums are fully paid there shall be levied and collected by a tax upon the City as heretofore existing, and the towns respectively, annually, a sum sufficient to pay the interest and principal of the debts of each, respectively, as the same shall become due, until the whole of said debts are paid. The Controller of New-York shall state and keep an account, under the direction of a Committee of the Common Council, composed of one from the present City of New-York and one from the towns annexed, showing the property and assets held by each respectively, and the value thereof on Dec. 31, 1872; and also showing the amount of the debts of each on that day actually existing or contingently arising from any work done for, or liability incurred, or property purchased by them respectively prior to that time. Such property shall be the common property of the whole City, subject, however, to the pledges heretofore made by law on the part of such present city and town. The value of the property and assets of each present city and town shall be deducted from the debts of each, and the surplus of debt of each, over the amount of its property and assets, shall continue a particular debt upon each respectively; the residue shall be common debt of the whole City. If the property and assets of either of said present City and towns shall exceed its debts, the balance shall be credited to it in the taxes of the year 1872. The property and assets of any district of either of the said City or towns shall, for the purpose of such account, be considered the property of the city or town in which the district is located. All taxes and assessments in the present City and towns remaining due and unpaid on Jan. 1, 1872, shall be collected as now provided by law, except that the supervisors, in cases of taxes remaining unpaid on the 1st day of July, 1871, and in cases of assessments remaining unpaid on the last-mentioned day, shall issue warrants for their collection to the tax-collectors of the towns, who shall collect them, and make their returns, and pay over the money collected to the several officers designated in this act for that purpose; and all proceedings after the expiration of any warrant for the collection of any such taxes and assessments shall be conducted according to the provisions of law relating to the collection of taxes and assessments in the City of New-York. Such taxes shall be applied to the purposes for which they have been levied in the city and towns respectively. The "suburban district" shall not be subject to the jurisdiction or authority of the City Government for any purposes connected with the highways, (except as provided in previous sections of this act,) streets, drains, sewers and docks thereof, unless on a petition of two-thirds of the owners of real estate, as shown by the tax map, in any ward of said district. In case such jurisdiction and authority shall be assumed within six months after the presentation of such petition as aforesaid, it shall become permanent. The new section also shall not constitute any part of the lamp, fire, water, or police district of the City, as heretofore existing, except as in this section provided; and in determining the amounts to be raised by tax, the aggregate amount thereof shall be apportioned between the City as heretofore existing and the suburban section, by specifying how much is to be levied upon the City as heretofore existing and how much upon the property in the suburban section. Until these privileges shall be extended over the section, the taxes levied upon real and personal estate situate within the portions of the towns shall be one per centum less than the taxes levied on other taxable real and personal estate in the City and County of New-York. But either or all of these privileges may be extended over any portion of said territory, upon petition, in the same manner prescribed for public ways, streets, sewers and docks. Whenever either of said privileges shall be extended, such portion shall be taxed one-quarter of one per cent. additional for either, and when all shall be extended the tax exception shall cease.

Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to in any way affect the rights heretofore conferred or duties imposed by any law relating to the improvement of any roadway in the territory set off, until Jan. 1, 1872. The town bonds authorized to be issued for the improvement of such roads shall be issued in the names of the respective towns, and for such purposes the town designations shall continue until all the bonds necessary to be issued for such work and authorized by law shall have been issued, excepting that, if any such roadway shall not be completed and the bonds authorized issued by Jan. 1, 1871, the proper authorities of New-York shall take possession of such roadways and shall complete them within a reasonable time; and any bonds which may have been authorized for such work, and which shall not have been issued by that time, may be issued by the Controller of the City on the requisition of the Commissioner of Public Works. Such bonds shall be signed by the Controller and countersigned by the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

For all judicial purposes, so far as relates to Surrogates' Courts and County Courts and Courts of General Sessions, and the jurisdiction and duties of County Judge and Surrogate, Justices of the Sessions, County Clerks, Sheriffs and Coroners, and the service and enforcement of judicial process, this act shall not take effect until Jan. 1, 1872, but for all other purposes this act shall take effect immediately, except such portions as are definitely fixed to take effect at particular dates.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Tuesday, Jan. 3.

At 11 o'clock the Senate was called to order by the Lieutenant-Governor, who addressed the Senators as follows:

SENATORS: Re-elected by the people to the office of Lieutenant-Governor, the Constitution makes it my duty again to act as President of the Senate. Having experienced your courtesy in the past, I confidently invoke its continuance in the future. I shall endeavor to discharge my duty impartially, and rely upon each Senator to assist in enforcing the rules by a careful observance of them on his part. Congratulations upon this reunion are saddened by the painful reflection that one seat is vacant. One of our number has gone from from earth, and "the places that knew him here will know him no more forever." His family, by whom he was so devotedly loved; his friends and fellow Senators, who so fully appreciated his virtues; and his constituents, whom he has so faithfully represented, mourn their bereavement. By this solemn dispensation we are forcibly reminded that we, too, are mortal. A few fleeting years and our hopes of fame, our dread of adverse fortunes, and our dreams of ambition will all be shrouded in the tomb. May we so live that when that supreme and inevitable hour shall come, we may each look back upon duty bravely done, upon temptations to achieve success by questionable means firmly resisted, and continued faithful service by an unfaltering trust, approach the grave like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

CALLING THE ROLL.

The roll having been called, a majority of the Senators answered to their names.

The usual Committees to notify the Governor and Assembly of the meeting of the Senate, were appointed.

THE FIRST VACATION.

Mr. TWEED moved that, if the Assembly concur, when the Senate adjourn, on Thursday next, it adjourn to meet on Wednesday next at 7 P. M. Adopted.

The Senate then took a recess for half an hour.

AFTER RECESS—BILLS INTRODUCED.

On reassembling bills were introduced as follows:

By Mr. NORTON—For the better protection of minors.

By Mr. PIERCE—Amending the charter of the Williamsburg and Flatbush Railroad Company.

By Mr. GENET—To annex the towns of Yonkers, West Chester, New-Rochelle, Pelham, West Chester, West Farms and Morrisania to New-York.

By Mr. KENNEDY—Confirming the title of certain persons to real estate questioned by alienage of former owners.

NOTICES OF BILLS.

Notice was given that the following bills would be introduced:

By Mr. CREAMER—To repeal the New-York Registry law.

By Mr. GENET—Amending the charter of the New-York and Long Island Bridge Company.

By Mr. CAULDWELL—Annexing the City of New-York to Morrisania.

By Mr. NORTON—For an elevated railway in New-York.

By Mr. TWEED—Authorizing New-York to acquire title and property in Putnam and Westchester counties for the better supply of water to New-York.

READING THE MESSAGE.

The Governor's Message was then presented by the Governor's private secretary and read.

On concluding the reading of the Message the Senate adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

At 11 o'clock A. M. the Clerk of the last House, CORNELIUS W. ARMSTRONG, called the House to order, and the Secretary of State proceeded to administer the oath of office to each member.

PROTEST AGAINST CAREY TAKING THE OATH.

The New-York delegation was called, and on reading the name of Mr. CAREY, Mr. GLEASON, on behalf of Mr. TWOMBLY, who contests Mr. CAREY'S seat, presented a protest against his being sworn in. Mr. FIELD objected to the protest being presented at this time. The Clerk decided the presentation of the protest out of order, and Mr. CAREY was sworn in.

ELECTION OF SPEAKER.

The House then proceeded to the election of officers. WM. HITCHMAN, of New-York, was named for Speaker by sixty-four members; JAMES W. HUSTED, of Westchester, was named for Speaker by sixty-two members. Mr. HITCHMAN was declared elected as Speaker, and he was conducted to the chair by Messrs. HUSTED and FLAGG. Mr. HITCHMAN, on taking the chair, addressed the members at considerable length.

After general remarks on the work of the last session, the Speaker said: Last year, when alluding, as is customary, to current political topics, I took occasion to refer to the then pending Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, I distinctly stated that my objection to the proposed amendment was not that it conferred the right of suffrage on the colored men, but that, under the pretense of enfranchising that class, it sought to give to Congress control of elections in the States, and to concentrate at the seat of the central Government at Washington, a despotic and irresponsible power of self-perpetuation, destructive of the rights of the citizen and dangerous to the liberties of the country. It will be remembered how generally this view of the intent and probable operation of the proposed amendment was denied, yet no sooner was the amendment adopted than Congress verified by its action this apprehension. So far as this State was concerned, there was no justification for Congressional interference, our Legislature having with the utmost promptitude passed a law which secured to the colored men all the rights claimed by them under the Fifteenth Amendment, and having on consultation between the majority and minority of the Legislature adopted a law providing regulations for registering, receiving and counting votes in the City of New-York satisfactory to both parties. The act of Congress authorized the President to put his soldiers at the election polls. In carrying it into practical operation it was proved that the real design of the law was to disfranchise the City of New-York. The law, under a show of fairness, provided that each political party should be represented equally among the men clothed with the new power to supervise elections. But the Circuit Judge, who was empowered to appoint these men, utterly ignored this provision so far as the City of New-York was concerned. He did this willfully and deliberately. His appointments were made wholly from those of one political party, or those confederated together for the same partisan purposes. They and the deputy marshals were recklessly chosen—many of them from the lawless classes of society, convicted felons, and other notorious criminals. This unjust Judge may be said, in the great cause of the people against party, to have heard but one side, and to have fraudulently given judgment, in advance, against the people, for the corrupt price of his party's unfair success. The marshals were armed with clubs and pistols, and the City was filled with armed regular soldiers, drawn from their proper duty at distant posts, even from the Indian Territory. The over-awing measures did not stop here. The armed ships of the navy were anchored in the adjoining rivers. These men, thus chosen for partisan purposes, met together and agreed to break up the election in the city by arresting voters on their own suspicion, and by carrying off and imprisoning the inspectors appointed under the laws of the State to receive the votes. That this course would result in violence and a general disturbance of the public peace, was anticipated; but even the prospects of such consequences did not lessen the persistence with which these men sought to accomplish their desperate purposes. * * * For escape from these great perils, we are indebted chiefly to the prudence, firmness, and wise precautions of the Governor, and, perhaps, in some degree, to the cry which went up from Wall-street, a cry for the safety of property, which was heeded by the Administration, although it was deaf to the claims of popular liberty. A cabinet council was held at Washington at the last moment, at which it was determined that the people of New-York should be allowed to vote. * * * The payment of the public debt is no party question; all agree that it is to be discharged to the last dollar, upon the most liberal construction in favor of our creditors. The new issues of revenue reform and opposition to land-jobbing at home and abroad, and retrenchment in public expenditure, as a necessity arising from heavy taxation, are fast growing into public importance. Some of us who have heretofore been opposed politically, may find ourselves acting together in the future; and it may be our common interest now, as it is clearly our duty, to see to it that the power of the people in this Government of ours be preserved in full efficiency, so as to effect a right decision of great questions. The preservation of our liberties is the first duty of every man who loves this country—a duty from which no spirit of temporary partisanship should swerve him.

OTHER OFFICERS CHOSEN.

The House then proceeded to elect a Clerk. CORNELIUS W. ARMSTRONG was named by sixty-five members. WM. G. WHED was named by sixty-three members. Mr. ARMSTRONG was then declared elected as Clerk. I. G. RHODES, of Oneonta, was named by sixty-five members for Sergeant-at-Arms, and WM. ATKINSON, of New-York, was named by sixty-three members. The other officers, as selected in the Democratic caucus, were then chosen.

RECEPTION OF THE MESSAGE AND DOCUMENTS.

The Governor's Message was then received at the hands of Col. VAN BUREN, private secretary to the Governor, and was read. The annual reports of the Controller and Auditor were received, and, with the Message, were ordered to be printed.

The Senate's resolution to adjourn over was received and laid over.

THE MILITIA LAW.

Mr. FLAGG introduced a bill amending the Militia law.

A CONTEST FOR MR. CAREY'S SEAT.

Mr. GLEASON presented the petition of Mr. TWOMBLY, the contestant for the seat accepted by Mr. CAREY, from the Seventh New-York District, and moved to appoint a committee of five on the petition.

Mr. CAMPBELL moved to lay the motion for a select committee on the table.

Mr. FIELD stated that as this motion carried the petition with it, and as he believed in the right of petition, though he was satisfied the seat belonged to Mr. CAREY, he would vote against it.

Mr. JACOBS said he would vote "no," so as to vote against a select committee when it came up.

The motion to lay on the table was lost, by 45 to 81.

Mr. FIELD inquired if the petition would go to the Committee on Privileges and Elections in case the motion for a select committee was negatived? The Speaker so ruled, and the motion for a select committee was lost, by 58 to 62. Mr. HUSTED having paired off with Mr. MOSELEY, was excused from voting on this matter. A recess was taken till 4 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The members selected their seats, and the House then adjourned.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, Jan. 3, 1871.

To the Legislature:

The favorable action of the Legislature, at its last session, upon many important recommendations made by me, has left very few questions of State policy to which it is necessary to call your attention. General laws have been passed, through which much special legislation will be avoided. The Conspiracy laws have been amended. A new revision of the statutes has been ordered. The Registry laws (except in the City of New-York) have been repealed. Important changes in canal policy have been made. The examination of numerous claims against the State, heretofore requiring a special act in each case, has been provided for by a single statute. The Excise laws have been modified in conformity with the judgment of a majority of the people. A general law for the incorporation of villages has been enacted. The powers of the Boards of Supervisors of the several counties have been enlarged. Metropolitan, and other district commissions, which had absorbed the rightful powers of local governments, have been abolished. The management of their own affairs has been restored to the people of the great cities. The initiatory steps have been taken to secure a more just and satisfactory assessment of property for taxation. These subjects engrossed, in a great degree, the time of the Legislature at the last session. The disposition then made of them having commanded the popular indorsement, the principles involved may be treated as settled. I am justified, therefore, in the hope that the present legislative session will be much shorter than usual. It will be a relief to the people if the volume of annual legislation be diminished; especially if they see that much of the diminution is due to the defeat of the private schemes which are so frequently thrust upon your consideration. Although the people of this State are enjoying a fair degree of prosperity, they feel sensibly the heavy burden of taxation, Federal, State, and local, which rests upon them, and which, as heavy taxes always do, lessens their home comforts and interferes with their efforts to improve their condition. They watch closely their representatives, legislative and executive, in the administration of public affairs. They expect retrenchment of expenditures wherever it is possible, and have a right to demand that legislation be confined to its legitimate purpose, to wit, the equal protection of all and the promotion of the general good. They know that all the money drawn from the public treasury is taken out of their earnings; that there is, in fact, no public treasury except in the pockets of the people. Willing to be taxed for the legitimate purposes of Government, they are not disposed to be parsimonious in contributing thereto; but waste, extravagance, and taxation for the benefit of private speculative enterprises, will incur their condemnation. The tendency on the part of both Federal and State Legislatures, for many years past, has been to the making of laws for the benefit of a favored few, protecting and advancing special at the cost of the general interests. Those who seek such legislative favors are always ready to put forward the specious argument that some public benefit is likely to accrue as a compensation for the private gain assured to themselves; but in too many cases the result is simply that new burdens are imposed on the people. The evil is one of great magnitude. Our Government is a government by majorities; but it is a mistake to suppose that the governing power, even when vested in a majority, has the right to impose taxes upon the people at large for purposes of private benefit. It is time to return, both in Federal and State affairs, to a full appreciation of the principle of justice to all, upon which our Government is founded. Our country has passed through the struggles and trials of a great civil strife, and our people are rapidly forgetting the causes which engendered it, and the griefs and sorrows it produced. While the nations of Europe are convulsed by war, or stand in dread of it, a merciful Providence blesses us with peace. Gratitude to God, as well as our interest, demands that we shall cultivate, all through the land, the spirit of magnanimity, charity and patriotism; then, if wisdom shall inspire our counsels, we may easily throw off the burden which folly and evil passions have put upon us, and enter upon a new career of public and private prosperity.

TAXES.

The rate of State taxation this year is about seven and one-fourth mills. Nearly one-third of the tax is for the annual payment on our war bounty debt, required by the act creating it. Besides this, one mill was necessary to provide for obligations incurred and claims audited in former years, but for payment of which the Legislature then omitted to make appropriations. It was not a question of discretion, but a matter of State honor, that these claims, heretofore examined and audited by the proper officers, should be paid at once. They ought to have been paid before. This item will not appear another year. Five-eighths of a mill are levied to meet payments for work on the new Capitol. The two last mentioned items amount to about one-fourth of the whole State tax. The new Capitol was begun under a former Administration. It is for the people, through their representatives, to say how rapidly the work shall go on. It is manifest that the cost of this work will very far exceed the original estimates, and the limit imposed by law; to this I deem it my duty to call your special attention. The act conferring authority on the Commissioners to erect a new Capitol (chapter 330 of laws of 1868) explicitly provided "that they shall not proceed to the construction of the said new Capitol unless they shall be satisfied that the expense thereof shall not exceed, when completed, $4,000,000." The sum of $1,603,750 58 (independent of $647,565 15 paid for land) has already been expended in the construction of the building; and the foundation only is completed. It is due to the Commissioners to say that before they commenced the work they had estimates from skilled men which came within the limit of $4,000,000; they claim also that the work above the foundation will be, proportionately, less expensive. It is, nevertheless, evident that the cost of the building, when completed, will be very greatly in excess of the first estimate. It is for you to provide a remedy for this very unsatisfactory state of things. If the work is to go on, perhaps the plans might be so modified that a building of much simpler and less costly style could be erected on the present foundation, and yet all the accommodation needed by the State Government be afforded. Nor do I see why, with the abundant space occupied, part of the proposed Capitol building should not be appropriated to an Executive residence. This would be a saving to the State. If, on the other hand, the work is to be stopped or suspended for a time, this can be done with less loss and inconvenience now than at any future period in the progress of construction. A new Capitol is unquestionably needed, but, unless the plans can be so modified as to insure that the cost will be very much less than it now promises to be, and not much in excess of the original limit, I recommend that the work be suspended, at least until our war bounty debt, which requires about $5,000,000 of annual taxation, be paid.

STATE DEBT.

The greater portion of the State debt consists of the war bounty debt, which will be extinguished within seven years through the annual taxes imposed by the act which created it. The unpaid portion of this debt amounted, on the 30th of September, 1870, to $19,511,390 42. The residue of the State debt, amounting to $12,897,733 34, was in existence before the war, and was incurred in gold; it is to be satisfied, not from taxation, but out of the revenues pledged for its payment. No part of the principal will come due this year, and you will merely have to provide for the payment of the interest in coin, in accordance with the policy which the State adopted last year. The entire State debt was, on the 30th of September, 1870, after deducting the unapplied portions of the several sinking funds, $33,409,144 26, a reduction of $6,455,304 48 having been effected during the past two years.

SALT SPRINGS.

The quantity of salt inspected from the Onondaga salt springs, during the last fiscal year, was 8,851,247 bushels. This shows an increase of production, compared with the previous year, of 316,518 bushels.

Revenue for the year	$88,550 97
Expenses	54,088 90
Net revenue to State	$33,911 07

BANKS.

On the 1st of October last, sixty-one banks were doing business under the laws of this State; of which number twenty-seven had been national banks, now reorganized as State banks under the provisions of chapter 475, Laws of 1867. Under this law, thirty banks in all had been converted from national banks into State banks. Three of these are closed; one in consequence of failure after an existence of less than one year. During the last fiscal year circulating notes to the amount of $388,925 have been burned by the Bank Department, and eight banks have been credited with lost circulation to the amount of $123,227, the time for redeeming it having expired. On the 1st of October last the amount of circulation outstanding, chargeable to the banking associations, individual and incorporated banks, was $2,253,937 30. Of this the amount of $779,297 50 consists of notes of incorporated banks in existence prior to the passage of our free banking laws, and for which no securities were required; and the sum of $1,474,640 is secured by deposits of bonds and mortgages, stocks and cash. The total amount of securities held by the Superintendent of the Banking Department at the close of the fiscal year was $2,671,288 63, of which $525,378 98 was held for trust companies, and the balance, $2,145,909 65, for banks, most of them being banks of circulation. One hundred and thirty-three savings banks, with total estimated assets of $220,000,000, are doing business in the State. The number of persons having deposits, as represented by the number of open accounts on the 1st of January, 1870, was 651,474, against 588,556 the previous year. The total amount of interest credited to depositors during the year ending Jan. 1, 1870, exceed $10,250,000. In the same period of time the assets of these banks were increased by the sum of $24,000,000, and more. In view of the magnitude of the interests involved in our savings banks, I renew my recommendation that full authority be conferred on the Superintendent of the Banking Department to examine their affairs, and to apply proper remedies for mismanagement.

INSURANCE.

The number of insurance companies subject to the supervision of the Insurance Department on the first day of December, 1870, is 275, as follows:

New-York joint-stock fire insurance companies	105
New-York mutual insurance companies	10
New-York marine insurance companies	9
New-York life insurance companies	43
Fire insurance companies of other States	67
Marine insurance companies of other States	3
Life insurance companies of other States	30
Casualty insurance companies of other States	3
Foreign insurance companies	6
Total	275

The total amount of stocks and mortgages held by the Department for the protection of policy-holders of life and casualty insurance companies doing business within it, is $712,567, as follows:

For protection of policy-holders generally, in life insurance companies of this State	$4,462,917
For protection of registered policy-holders exclusively	1,559,650
For protection of casualty policy-holders exclusively	28,000
For protection of fire policy-holders in foreign insurance companies	1,040,000
For protection of life policy-holders in foreign insurance companies	316,000
Total deposit	$7,412,567

STATE PRISONS.

The Controller's report will show, in detail, the earnings and expenses of the State Prisons during the past year. The discipline in these institutions has been, on the whole, better than heretofore. Nevertheless, there is much need of further improvement in their management, financially and otherwise. As I said in my last Message, greater concentration of responsibility is required; and this can, probably, be attained only by an amendment of the Constitution. I renew my recommendation that greater discretionary power be conferred on the chief officer of each prison in the matter of punishments. Under the authority of chapter 427 of the Laws of 1870, I appointed as Building Commissioners for the erection of the State Prison or Industrial Reformatory established at Elmira, in Chemung County, AMOS PILSBURY, of Albany; CHARLES C. B. WALKER, of Corning; ABRAM H. MILLER, of Oswego, and STEPHEN T. ARNOT and FRANK H. ATKINSON, of Elmira. These Commissioners have visited the most important of the buildings recently erected for similar purposes in the Eastern States; and Mr. PILSBURY, by their authority and on their behalf, has examined all newly-constructed prisons in Ohio, Illinois and other Western States. They have perfected the title of the State to the lands selected by a former commission for the site, and will be prepared to begin the construction of the building early in the coming Spring, if the necessary appropriations be made by the Legislature. The Commission appointed by me, in pursuance of your concurrent resolution, to examine the subject of convict labor, consists of E. C. WINES and THOMAS FENCER, of New-York, and MICHAEL S. MYERS, of Auburn. A report from them may be expected during the present session. I visited, during the past year, as I did the year before, all the State Prisons, and gave a hearing to every convict who desired to apply personally to me for pardon or commutation of punishment. More than 1,000 applications for pardon and commutation of punishment have been presented to me, by the convict in person, or by written petition. Eighty-five pardons, thirty-four commutations and one reprieve have been granted; a detailed statement whereof, and of my reasons in each case, will be hereafter submitted.

CHARITIES AND ASYLUMS.

I respectfully refer you to the report of the Commissioners of Charities for information upon the condition of the various State charities, all of which are recommended to your favorable and careful consideration. In some of the counties great improvements have been made in the management of the poorhouses. The pressing claims of the insane poor for better care than can possibly be given them elsewhere than at asylums specially provided for their form of human suffering, I again urge upon your attention. You will be called upon to make appropriations for enlarging the accommodations in the State asylums for such of the insane as have no means of support. I trust you will do whatever is needed to hasten the time when all of this class may be removed from the county poorhouses. I recommend also to you an inquiry into the condition of pauper children in the several counties, and whether some provision ought not to be made for removing them to proper asylums.

EDUCATION.

The general operations of the Department of Public Instruction during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1870, are shown by the following statistics:

Total receipts from all sources, including balance on hand at the beginning of the year	$10,919,466 45
Total expenditures	9,929,462 92
Amount paid for teachers' wages	6,501,173 37
Amount paid for school-houses, repairs and furniture	1,980,546 79
The estimated value of school-houses and sites	20,417,329 00
Number of children attending the public schools	1,029,935
Number of persons attending the normal schools	4,734
Total number of school-houses	11,705

The money which we cheerfully pay for the purposes of general education is well and carefully applied, and the extent to which the opportunities afforded are made use of, proves how highly the people appreciate our common schools. I am sure the Legislature needs no recommendation from me to extend to our school system the most liberal encouragement.

STATE MILITIA.

The State militia, organized under the name of "The National Guard of the State of New-York," numbers now over 20,000 officers, non-commissioned officers and privates. For details I respectfully refer you to the report of the Adjutant-General. The military code, adopted at the last session, has been received with approval by officers and men alike. I consider it of great importance that the State military organization should be generously sustained by the Legislature. To make it thoroughly efficient it should be armed with breech-loaders of the best quality and most approved pattern, and I recommend a suitable appropriation for that purpose. A further settlement of over $600,000 of the war claims of this State upon the General Government has been effected this year.

QUARANTINE.

The experience of the past year has furnished additional evidence of the security afforded to the public health by the proper administration of Quarantine laws. Out of 365 vessels which arrived in the port of New-York from ports infected with yellow fever, 107 had had cases of this disease on board either in the port of departure or on their passage, or were found on their arrival here to have some of their crew or passengers sick with it. The total number of cases on these vessels, as nearly as could be ascertained, was 470, out of which 112 died. Twenty-six cases from vessels under quarantine were admitted to the West Bank Hospital, only six of which proved fatal. In addition to these, eighty-three patients, prostrated with yellow fever, were admitted to the hospital from among the troops on Governor's Island, thirty-one of whom died. Thirty vessels have been detained at quarantine on account of small-pox, having an aggregate of over 18,000 persons on board, from among whom sixty-six patients, sick with this disease, were sent to the hospital on Blackwell's Island. Ten vessels have arrived, having ship-fever on board, with an aggregate of nearly 6,000 passengers, twenty-two of whom died with the disease on the passage, and forty others, sick with it on their arrival, were transferred to the Ward's Island Hospital. These statistics of disease show the dangers to which we are exposed through our foreign commerce. Happily they have been so warded off, that, notwithstanding the intense heat of the past Summer, the general health has not been disturbed by them. It is reasonable to assume that this result is, in a great measure, due to the vigilance and fidelity of the Quarantine authorities, and to the increased facilities afforded them by the West Bank Hospital for the care and treatment of patients. This is the first year that it has been in full operation, and the success which has attended its workings has fully met the expectations of the public and demonstrated the wisdom of its erection. It is claimed, however, that until a suitable place for the detention of those who, while not actually sick, have been exposed to disease by passage in an infected vessel, and until warehouses for the storage of infected goods are provided, it will be difficult to protect the public fully against the dangers of imported disease. A structure on West Bank for the former purpose has been commenced, but additional appropriation will be required to complete it.

IMMIGRATION.

The number of emigrants arriving at the Port of New-York this year is 212,000, a loss, as compared with last year, of 47,000; the number of arrivals this year being about the same as in 1868. We may reasonably expect, that, with the return of peace in Europe, emigration thence to this country will be very largely increased.

REVISION OF STATUTES.

I appointed, under chapter 33, of the Laws of 1870, AMASA J. PARKER of Albany, NELSON J. WATERBURY and MONTGOMERY H. THROOP of New-York, Commissioners to revise, simplify, arrange and consolidate all statutes of the State of New-York. The work is being prosecuted with diligence.

TAX REVISION.

Under the authority of the joint resolution of the Legislature, passed at its last session, I appointed DAVID A. WELLS, GEORGE W. CUTLER and EDWIN DODGE, Commissioners to revise the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes. Their report will be submitted at an early period of the present session.

CANALS.

I hold to the same opinions, concerning our canals, as was expressed in my annual Messages of 1869 and 1870. The magnitude of our internal commerce is far beyond that of our foreign trade. Our canals are a necessary means of facilitating this great domestic traffic, and their maintenance in good navigable condition is essential to the general welfare of the people of this State. Our Constitution, from various considerations of public policy, has provided that these works shall always remain the property of and be under the management of the State; and the suggestion to surrender them to the control, in any degree, of the Federal Government, deserves no consideration. The Federal Government has already enough of administrative duties. This State built these canals without any extrinsic aid; it owns them, and is quite competent to take care of them. Our own people are directly interested in their good management, and these great works are much more likely to be well administered by ourselves than if put under so remote a supervision as that of the Government at Washington.

The Canal Board, by authority of the Legislature, adopted last year a reduced scale of tolls. As was anticipated, there has resulted a diminution of revenue, as compared with the previous season. As compared with a period of years, however, the falling off is not serious. The average annual receipts of the canals from the year 1846 down to 1869, inclusive, (the period of high tolls,) is very little in excess of those of 1870; and this includes the exceptional period of the war, when the receipts were unusually large. The falling off last year is not all due to the low rate of tolls. From purely commercial causes, there has been a diminished traffic. The business of the canals, moreover, suffered during the past Summer from a great reduction of railroad rates of freight temporarily made by rival companies in a struggle for the Western trade. Whether this diminution of revenue is to be temporary or permanent, the interest of our people requires that whatever changes in the toll-sheet the exper to buy. Blankets, woolen clothes and many other things of common use are dearer in this country than in any other, to the injury of those whose lot it is to work very hard for their comforts, which class constitutes the great bulk of every people. These are only some of the evil results from the Federal Government legislating for the benefit of a few capitalists, under the false pretense of protecting our home labor. The enormous profits resulting from this unjust favoritism go all to the manufacturing and mining capitalist; not to the men employed by him. The high duties, laid for so-called protection, do not inure to the benefit of the public treasury, nor do they make the general condition of the laborer, whether in or out of factories, better. Even the protected capitalists are beginning to share in the effects of the general derangement and languor in business generated by this false system, which undertakes to sustain certain favored persons in occupations in which, if left to their own skill and resources, they would, by their own admissions, fail. There is no sufficient remedy for this except in the absolute rejection from our Federal legislation of the principle of favoritism. All the people are entitled to equal protection; none have a right to special favors; and it is wrong which, it seems to me, ought to shock the moral sense of every one, for a Government, under the pretext of raising revenue, to tax the whole people in order that a few men may do a profitable business. It is, moreover, demonstrated by experience, that high duties and a complex system of taxes laid on many articles, (the larger number of which contribute little to the revenue,) while they make necessary the maintenance, out of the revenues and consequently at the cost of additional public burdens, of many more Government officers than would be required by a simpler method, render frauds more profitable and easier of accomplishment and lead to an increased amount of private and official corruption. Piece-meal amendments to the tariff are of little value. What we need is, that a rebuke shall come up from the people, so strong that it cannot be overlooked or forgotten, of the practice of imposing taxes for any purpose, save the one of procuring necessary revenue for the public treasury. No compromise should be made on this question; nothing accepted by the people short of the establishment of a tariff as moderate as the necessities of the Government will permit, applied to as few articles as will yield the required amount, and adjusted strictly to its only lawful purpose, that of raising revenue.

FEDERAL FINANCES.

The administration of the Federal finances exhibits no improvement. Taxes are still levied to an amount greatly in excess of the needs of the Government; and the excess is applied porary in its character, but the result of steady growth and development. This assertion is sustained by the following statement, which shows the tonnage movement for a period of ten years, by railroads and canals, commencing with 1860:

	Railroad tonnage.	Canal tonnage.
1860	3,167,727	4,650,214
1861	2,628,720	4,507,635
1862	3,019,388	5,598,785
1863	3,264,709	5,837,692
1864	3,727,046	4,852,941
1865	3,509,649	4,729,654
1866	4,844,989	5,775,220
1867	5,152,472	5,688,325
1868	5,754,842	4,442,252
1869	6,594,004	4,859,050

In a period of ten years we see that the tonnage of the Erie and Central Railways has increased 204, and the canal tonnage twenty-six per cent. What becomes of the assertion that trade is now being diverted from us, or that diversion is imminent in the future, when it is confronted by such an array of facts?

It is contended by some that our canals are ceasing to be a route for the movement of agricultural products, and are only employed in moving less valuable descriptions of freight. Suppose this were true, what matters it to the prosperity of our State, so long as our railways are relieved of this traffic and left to enter the field with all their immense equipments, to compete mainly for the movement of agricultural products? Do we not fail to comprehend our real advantage if we look upon this feature as a cause for complaint?

It is quite as important to the welfare of our State that the coarser descriptions of freight should be moved by some process, and what is more natural than that the most bulky and least expensive articles should take the slowest method of transit? The tonnage of the canals for the year 1869 was here exceeded except by the previous year, while the tonnage of the two roads for the same year is without a parallel. What foundation is there upon which to base an assertion that the trade of New-York is being diverted? Our canals are stocked with boats sufficient to do more business than their capacity will admit, and the natural result follows that they cannot all be profitably employed. The business is overdone; and when this is the case, whether it be carrying or merchandising, it must be unprofitable. The owners of these boats do not recognize the general principles which govern all business, but erroneously attribute their misfortunes to diversion. They appeal to us to do something that will increase the volume of canal traffic, and without considering the practicability of the method, demand a reduction in tolls.

Upon them, is to be the future of our canals? They will continue to be the means for moving the surplus freight, except the State by some legislation shall relieve them from the sharp competition of the roads. This is all they have done since the railways were equipped for the transportation of freight. This surplus freight, which the canals obtain, is neither increased nor diminished by the operation of tolls, but is controlled entirely by the supply and demand. Nothing is more easy than to demonstrate the truth of this proposition. Before the advent of railroads, Western products, destined to Eastern markets, sought the lake ports by such conveyances as offered; then through the harbor to the mouth of the canals, at Buffalo and Oswego. There were no other outlets. Cut off the railway connections of Western with Eastern roads, and the entire volume of Western products seeking Eastern markets would again tend to our canals. Our canals stand in precisely the same position to command Western trade as we found the Central and Erie Railways, if they were without lake or other Western connections. Our railroads, starting from the City of New-York, connect at the lake ports of Buffalo and Dunkirk, either with steamers under their own control, or with other railways, which penetrate every portion of the grain producing regions of the West, thus intercepting all traffic almost at the place of production. What is the result? Regardless of the rates established by the water route, the railroads, being compelled to run their trains with regularity, and finding it more profitable to carry freight, at a rate even below cost, than to draw their cars empty, secure what freight they need to advance of all other carriers. The surplus is then pushed forward to the lake ports. Here (at the lake ports) the railway steamers, comprising nearly the entire steam marine of the lakes, which must run with the regularity of railway trains, regardless of rates, secure their cargoes, which are to be transported by rail from Buffalo and Dunkirk, and the surplus is then sent forward to Buffalo and Oswego by vessels not in the interest of the railways. Even after the property has reached Buffalo, and has actually gone into store, the strife has not ended. The railroads, regardless of rates, take what they must to keep their rolling stock employed; the canal secures the surplus only, and it is this surplus, after the traffic has thrice been intercepted, that it can obtain. The truth of this proposition, that the canals only obtain the surplus, has been more positively confirmed during the past season than at any previous time, and if there has even been a doubt on this point heretofore it should now be dispelled. With tolls reduced to so low a rate that any further reduction which could be made would be too immaterial to make a diversion, if by that means it were practicable, we have made no gains in agricultural products over the previous year. Any practical canal forwarder will tell us that the experience of the past season has not differed from that of previous years.

It will be seen from this review of the trade of our State, and the processes by which it is controlled and intercepted by the railways before reaching the canals, that there has been no diversion from the State, but that the traffic has steadily increased. That if the canals have failed to obtain a large per centage of the increase as their more fortunate rivals, the railroads, the fault cannot justly be attributed to that policy which requires the imposition of tolls on the portion which falls to the State works, but in the unjust and unequal strife of the roads against the interests of the State. That our canals are worth all they cost, if for no other purpose than to insure reasonable prices for transportation, whether the traffic is moved by our canals or by the railroads—the benefits thus conferred not being limited to the products which seek our own markets, but actually extended to those moved by parallel lines to the sea-board markets of other States. That our canals, with our railroads, which are constantly adding to their facilities, are equal to any business that can reasonably be anticipated or desired for years to come. With all the advantages which we possess, it would be the height of folly and stupidity to allow ourselves to be so deluded by the cry of diversion, as to influence us longer to continue a policy that will make our canals the source of an onerous tax on the property-holders of the State.

CONCLUSION.

The Auditor cannot, in justice to his own sense of duty, conclude his third annual report without respectfully and earnestly urging upon the Legislature the importance of promptly arresting the further progress of a policy which has, within a few months, nearly dissipated the entire earnings of the canals. The injurious effects of the present mistaken policy should be corrected at the earliest day possible. Why should the interests of the State be subordinate to the interests of private parties, and legislation so necessary for the proper management of the canals, delayed until the last days of the session? In considering the reforms necessary to protect the State in its tolls and revenues, the clamor that "the canals have fulfilled their mission," or that "their legitimate commerce has been diverted to other channels," should not be allowed to influence your action; nor should you suffer the results of the last year, and your own convictions of duty in regard thereto, to be overborne by the specious devices or importunities of those whose interests are not in consonance with the interests of the State. In spite of their most persistent and continued efforts in that direction, commerce of the canals has steadily and constantly increased for the last ten years. No more convincing proof of the wise adaptation of the canals of our State to the commercial wants of the country can be required than the increasing tonnage which is annually passing through them. Therefore, in order that they may fulfill the requirements of the Constitution it is only necessary for the Legislature to establish and maintain a wise and comprehensive system of tolls and repairs. For this purpose the toll-sheet must be arranged and adjusted to the traffic of the canals and the cost of their repairs, that it may yield a surplus sufficient to pay the debt and, at the same time, the repairs must be sufficient to secure the unobstructed navigation of the canals without absorbing their entire gross revenues. These indispensable conditions cannot be accomplished under the present system. Adequate rates of toll must be imposed and a more economical system of repairs restored. More power must be given to the Canal Commissioners and less to their subordinates. Greater restrictions must be placed upon disbursing officers and subordinates deprived of all control over the treasury. All laws inviting the presentation of claims for canal damages should be repealed, and no award should be made in excess of damages actually occasioned by the State. No money should be expended for new works or extraordinary repairs that can be deferred until the canal debt shall have been paid, and such work can be done from canal revenues. Liberal encouragement should be given to mechanics and others for the introduction of an improved system of towage, and a plan to remedy the present cumbersome mode of operating the lock gates.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JAMES A. BELL, Auditor.

Alleged Incendiary Fire.

Soon after 2 o'clock A. M., yesterday, a fire was discovered in the jewelry-store of CHARLES ROSEFIELD, on the first floor of No. 156 Third-avenue. It was soon extinguished, but not until the upper part of the building, occupied by a number of families, was filled with smoke, causing intense alarm among the occupants. All were, however, got out safely. ROSEFIELD'S stock was damaged $500; insured for $4,500 by the Phenix and Commercial Companies. The adjoining store of HENRY BLACKWELL, dealer in sewing-machines, was damaged $300. Insured. EDWARD GRAY'S oyster saloon, in the basement, was damaged $200. ROSEFIELD and family were observed to leave the house early in the evening, carrying a large basket. They had not returned when the fire was discovered. Believing that the fire was of incendiary origin, Sergt. BARFIELD caused the arrest of ROSEFIELD. Yesterday he was taken before Fire Marshal MCSPEDON, and after an examination discharged from custody. The matter will be further investigated.

JUDGE BARNARD AND ERIE.

The Ramsey-Erie War—Extraordinary Default—Another Appeal Before the General Term of the Supreme Court.

The case of JOSEPH H. RAMSEY, respondent, vs. The Erie Railway Company, JAY GOULD, JAMES FISK, Jr., and others, appellants, came before the General Term of the Supreme Court of this District yesterday, Judges INGRAHAM, CARDOZO and BARNARD on the Bench. This is an appeal on behalf of the Erie interest from an order of the Special Term vacating and setting aside a default taken against the plaintiff in October last, and ordering the cause to stand over, &c., to fix the amount of the extra allowance to the counsel for the Company.

Mr. D. D. FIELD, in behalf of the Company, argued at some length the following points, among others:

First—The motion was premature. The order to dismiss the complaint was not entered, and might never have been entered. It depended entirely upon the plaintiff whether it should be entered or not.

Second—The motion was unnecessary. The direction to dismiss was only upon the condition that the plaintiff did not elect to try the case. He was at liberty to try it if he chose.

Third—The motion was irregular. The matter was still sub judice. While a matter is still depending before one Judge, it is entirely irregular to bring it before another Judge. A party has no right thus to speculate upon the opinions of the Judges, and endeavor to array one against another. Mr. FIELD, during his argument, said the appeal was evidently an attempt by a Judge at Chambers to interfere with the work, if not with the reputation, of a Judge sitting at Special Term.

Mr. PECKHAM appeared in behalf of the plaintiff, RAMSEY. He stated the case in all its various stages at some length. Among other things, he said that the action was commenced on the 23d of November, 1869; that on the 24th or 25th of November an action was commenced in the name of the Erie Railway Company against RAMSEY and others, and an injunction order issued and served upon defendant RAMSEY, enjoining him from taking any further proceedings in this action, and such order, after argument by counsel, was continued until judgment should be had in the action. That after the service of the injunction, Mr. RAMSEY being advised that it was void, and that he could disobey it, a motion was made in this action, during the making of which he was present, and immediately after it he was served with papers to show cause why he should not be punished for a contempt in thus proceeding further in this action. That Mr. RAMSEY appeared by counsel, and showed cause why he should not be punished, but the Court decided it had jurisdiction, adjudged him in contempt, and ordered a reference to ascertain damages, and the referee having made his report, Mr. RAMSEY was fined $5,825 for his alleged violation of the injunction order in the other action, by proceeding further in this. From that time Mr. RAMSEY took no step forward. No motions were made against him which he opposed, and appealed from orders granted thereon. Among such motions was one to change the place of trial herein from Delaware to New-York, which was granted by default; a motion made to set aside the order taken by default, at New-York, which was denied, and an appeal taken to the New-York General Term, which had not decided it on the 25th of October. The case was of that importance, and the issues involved in it so extended, that plaintiff swore he could not prepare it for trial in less time than one month, devoting all his time to it. That he had not made a motion for discovery, because of the injunction, and he was advised by his counsel that it was material to have such motion made and discovery had before the trial of the action. That he had made no motion for the settlement of issues, because of the injunction, and he claimed the right to make such motion for ten days after issue, unobstructed by an injunction. While the plaintiff was thus under injunction, the defendants proceeded and noticed the cause for trial at the last October Special Term. On the first or second day of the term, the plaintiff had a motion made to put the case over, but the Court reserved it until Oct. 20. On the 20th October, the plaintiff had the motion again made to put the cause over, when defendants' counsel herein, and plaintiff's counsel in the other case, Mr. FIELD, in his own motion, moved an order entered, assuring to modify the injunction in the other case, so as to allow this plaintiff to prepare for trial. Then the Court ordered this cause to be set down for trial, Oct. 25. On the 25th October, plaintiff appeared and read another affidavit, setting forth all the above facts, and stating he was not ready, and his utter inability to get ready, and that such inability was caused by the operation of the injunction, and that the assumed dissolution of it, or modification thereof, three week-days before the time for trial, amounted to nothing, and plaintiff demanded, as a right, that the cause go over the term, and that, if it were to be tried this term, he would be deprived of several legal and absolute rights which he named in his affidavit. All these facts appeared to the Judge who was holding the Special Term, and yet he decided that no cause was shown for the plaintiff's not being ready to try the cause, and ordered that the trial proceed. The case was then called, and the plaintiff did not as he was then the Court made the following order: "Complaint dismissed, with costs. Upon order being entered, the cause to stand over to Nov. 14, 1870, at 10½ o'clock A. M., to fix the amount of the extra allowance to the defendants, and to give plaintiff leave at that time to open the default and try the cause." A motion was at once noticed, for the Special Term, Chambers, to open the default, and a stay of proceedings obtained in the mean time. The motion was made on the 10th of November and decided on the 19th, and the order entered on the 23d. The order set aside the default, and restored the plaintiff's complaint without imposing any terms. From this order counsel said the defendants have appealed to the General Term, and thus it is the case now comes before the Court.

Mr. PECKHAM, in the course of his argument, made the following point:

The cause of justice, the proper administration of the laws, the honor of the Judiciary of the State, the simple desire for fair play, all unite in requiring the order setting aside this extraordinary default to stand. A stockholder, boudholder and creditor of a large corporation brings an action (adjudged by the Court to have been properly brought and rightfully prosecuted,) against the directors and trustees thereof, charging them with gross and numerous abuses of their official trusts, and asking for such appropriate relief as a court of equity may properly grant. The next day a cross action is commenced in the name of the corporation against the plaintiff, and an injunction is issued restraining the plaintiff in the first action from going on with his case, and such injunction is continued in full force up to judgment, after hearing both parties, by the Judge who first granted it. The plaintiff, acting under advice of counsel, ventures to sit by his counsel when a motion is made in the suit, when he is almost instantly served with an order to show cause why he should not be punished as for a contempt in disobeying such injunction. The same Judge (BARNARD) who granted the injunction, and ordered its continuance, who granted the order to show cause why this plaintiff should not be punished as for a contempt, after hearing the parties, adjudges him guilty of a contempt, and, after a reference, fines him $5,825. After this, the defendants herein notice this cause for trial (which the plaintiff says he did not notice because of the injunction), and the case is reached at a term held by the same Judge who granted the orders above mentioned, and, when the case is called, it is asked, on the part of the plaintiff, that the case go over the term, because plaintiff was not ready, and that he had failed to be ready because he could not be prepared without violating the injunction, a form or alleged violation of which cost him a fine of nearly $6,000, and the plaintiff shows by affidavit the absolute impossibility of getting ready for trial. The Judge, nevertheless, refuses the application, and proceeds, without proof, or even hearing him in that behalf, to pronounce his judicial rebuke of the plaintiff for bringing his suit in bad faith, by way of retaliation and revenge, and without having much interest in the case. He then dismisses the complaint, with costs, and orders the case to stand over to a future day, then named, for the purpose of fixing the amount of the extra allowance.

If Judge LEONARD called the case before him "a mockery of justice" what would he say in regard to this case? This transaction occured in the nineteenth century, and before the judicial tribunals of a people who boast of their civilization and justice! Language fails when an attempt is made to characterize it! The Court, upon this motion, at Special Term, came to the conclusion (how could it come to any other?) that the default should be set aside, and ordered accordingly. With so righteous a judgment, to just an order, we are sure this Court will interfere, only to affirm it with costs.

Mr. PECKHAM had not concluded his argument when the hour for adjournment arrived. He will continue it at the opening of the Court this morning.

The Case of the Steam-Ship Florida—Examination Before Judge Blatchford.

In the United States District Court, yesterday, before Judge BLATCHFORD, the case of the steam-ship Florida, which was seized some months since, having on board a large quantity of arms and ammunition, alleged to have been intended to aid the Cuban revolutionary movement, came on for a hearing. Mr. FRANCIS DARE, the claimant of the vessel, was examined by Gen. DAVIES, Assistant District-Attorney. He testifies that in April last he purchased the steamer Florida, and, subsequently, had her laden with ammunition and arms, bound for Vera Cruz. His purchase of the vessel was entirely voluntary, and the arms and ammunition he bought as a mercantile venture. He described the nature of the cargo, which included several hundred cases of rifles, four pieces of cannon, one twelve-pound howitzer, a revolving cannon, &c., with a large quantity of suitable ammunition. He was the only person interested in the vessel, and thought Vera Cruz would be a good market for his goods. He also purchased a steam-launch, but refused to disclose the name of the party who acquainted him that it was for sale, as it might jeopardize the safety of other men. The Court compelled him to reveal the name, which was ELOY CAMACHO, a Cuban agent, residing in this City. He borrowed $36,000 from CARLOS DEL CASTELLO, the great portion of which was expended in the purchase of the war material found in the vessel, and to whom he gave only a verbal promise for payment. The vessel was fitted out without instructions from anybody. The witness did not remember having any conversation with CASTELLO and CAMACHO with reference to the disposition of the cargo, but the former told him he was a resident of Havana, and desired the independence of Cuba. He was also aware that he was connected with the movement in this City for Cuban independence. At this point of the case the Court adjourned, Judge BLATCHFORD expressing his intention to take it up daily until its termination.

A Judicial Shot at the Marshal's and District-Attorney's Offices.

In the United States District Court yesterday, before Judge BLATCHFORD, Assistant District-Attorney ELM drew attention to the fact that the Marshal had made no return of a process in a cigar case that occurred in No. 151 Orchard-street in September last. Judge BLATCHFORD said it was the Marshal's duty to return all money due on processes, and if he failed, the District-Attorney should take measures to compel him to do so. He understood that moneys lay in the Marshal's hands for upward of four months, and it was a very serious neglect of duty on the part of the District-Attorney and his assistants.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Blatchford.

Benjamin F. Folson vs. The American Mutual Insurance Company.—This was an action brought by the plaintiff to recover a policy of insurance for $3,000, taken out on the 1st of March, 1869, by him on the vessel B. F. Folson, which sailed from Boston for Buenos Ayres on the 1st January, and was lost on the 13th of the same month. The policy was designed to hold from the 1st January, 1869, to 1st January, 1870. The Company objected to its payment on the ground of fraud, inasmuch as when the insurance was effected the vessel had already been lost, and that several material facts were withheld from their knowledge. Judge BLATCHFORD took the papers and reserved his decision.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM—JAN. 3.

Before Presiding Justice Ingraham and Judges Barnard and Cardozo.

ASSESSMENT OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The People ex rel. Benjamin T. Babbitt vs. The Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments for the City of New-York, Respondents.—The relator in this case was, in April last, assessed by the Commissioners of Taxes of this City, on his personal property on $250,000. He claims that, on the 1st of January, 1870, his personal property and assets, other than certain bonds of the United States Government, amounted in the aggregate to $345,895 97; and that his debts on that day were $356,084 49; that between Jan. 1 and April 1, 1870, the liabilities and debts of the petitioner increased, and that at the end of April, the excess of debts over his assets was greater than on Jan. 1. On the 29th of April, 1870, he addressed to the respondents a written notice duly verified to the effect that he was not liable to taxation in any amount for personal estate, and requested them to strike his name from the assessment rolls. From this statement, it appeared the relator was the owner of $250,000, commonly known as five-twenties, which had been purchased by him in the years 1865, 1866 and 1867, for permanent investment, which bonds he claims are by law exempt from taxation. The petitioner, therefore, insisted that as his debts exceeded the amount of his personal property, aside from the bonds mentioned, he was not liable to be assessed or taxed in any amount for personal estate, and that those bonds could not be taken into consideration for the purposes of taxation, either as a part of his capital, or for the reduction of his debts and liabilities. The respondent declined to accede to this, but gave the relator notice that they had reduced his assessment to $200,000. From the decision of the tribunal below, an appeal was taken to this Court, which after argument was affirmed.

PUBLICATION OF CORPORATION NOTICES—MOTION TO VACATE ASSESSMENT.

In the Matter of the Petition of George W. Douglass to Vacate an Assessment for Regulating and Grading Sixty-fourth-street, Between Third and Fifth avenues.—The petitioner made an application under the act of 1858 to vacate an assessment for regulating and grading Sixty-fourth-street, from Third to Fifth-avenue, on the ground that the resolutions and reports of the Committees authorizing and recommending the improvement were not published in the Corporation newspapers as required by the seventh and thirty-seventh sections of the charter of 1857. The case was argued recently before Presiding Justice Ingraham, at Chambers, soon after which time that Justice delivered an opinion, in which he gave his reasons for refusing to vacate the assessment.

The petitioner thereupon took an appeal to the General Term, and the case was argued today. After the conclusion of Mr. Miller's argument in behalf of the petitioner, Mr. O'Gorman, for the City, was about to speak, when the Court interfered and said they had come to the conclusion that the judgment of the Court below must be affirmed.

TUESDAY, Jan. 3—P. M.

The business of the New Year opened this morning, after the double Holiday of Sunday and Monday, with a cheerful feeling, responsive to the buoyant close of the Old Year on Saturday. Prices for the Public Funds and the Railways were firm at the Stock Exchange, and Money was supposed to be reasonably easy at Bank and on the Street at 7 ₱ cent. per annum. But before 1 o'clock the Exchange had lost its elasticity, and the quotations ran down ¼@1 ₱ cent. on some of the Railways, and ¼@¾ ₱ cent. on United States 5-20s, from the extreme advance, and there was quite a general inquiry among the Brokers for Money. The leading Banks, and many of the private Bankers were very busy in paying New-Year Dividends, and were not lenders of Money for the day, while many of the recipients of these Dividends are not yet prepared to reinvest or lend out their balances. The situation is not an usual one for the first two or three days after a New-Year, and the opinion still prevails that the market will soon adjust itself to the letting loose of Gold and Currency, for some time in the Treasury, in payment of Dividends and the purchases of United States 5-20s for the Sinking Fund, the first of which purchases for January will take place at noon to-morrow (Wednesday) to the extent of $2,000,000.

There is no default noticed today in the Railway Dividends. The Union Pacific Company are promptly paying their Gold coupons on the First Mortgage Bonds, and the Dividends upon the Western and other Railway Mortgages, and also the coupons on the Bonds of Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana, among the Southern States, are met with promptness.

Gold shows firmness in the face of the large sums coming out of the Treasury for the January Dividends, and most of the sales of the day were at 110¾@110⅞ ₱ cent. The amount paid out for January Interest today is $1,770,000, and on the Principal of the Loan of 1871, $80,000.

The Pacific Railway Mortgages were firm on Centrals at 90½ ex d

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

A reception was given by the Prussians in the Palace of Versailles on the 1st inst., to the officers of the German Army. The King made a short address, ascribing to the heroism of the troops the great events which preceded the celebration of the day in such a place; the goal was still unattained; important tasks were to be accomplished before a lasting peace could be achieved, and a peace which would involve a continuation of the duties which brought them there, would be censurable. Advices from Paris to the 30th ult., represent that the people unite in urging Gen. TROCHU to make a sortie with an enormous force, which can be spared for the service, the weather having become more moderate, and the artillery being so powerful and well manned, that the enemy can make slight impression on the fortifications. Gen. VON MOLTKE, after the battle at Pont Noyelles, sent a message to TROCHU that the Army of the North had been annihilated, but TROCHU paid no attention to the story. The French success which led to the evacuation of Gray, in the east, by the Germans is confirmed. The reported withdrawal of the German Army of the Loire to Glen, to the eastward of Orleans, thirty or forty miles, seems to be confirmed. Part of Gen. CHAUZY'S army is on a strod position near Vendôme, according to Bordeaux telegrams, which also claimed that all the engagements on the Loire for a week have been favorable to the French. Twelve hundred prisioners were taken by them at Lachatre. In crossing the Coire on the ice recently, 300 Prussians were drowned. The British demand on Prussia regarding the sinking of the colliers in the Seine, is said to be in a fair way to adjustment.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate was called to order yesterday at 11 A. M., and a short address was made by the Lieutenant-Governor. The roll was then called, and a majority responded. On motion of Mr. TWEED, it was resolved, the Assembly concurring, that the adjournment on Thursday be until the following Wednesday. After a recess of half an hour several bills were introduced, among them one to annex the towns of Yonkers, East Chester, New-Rochelle, Pelham, West Chester, West Farms and Morrisania to New-York. Notices were given of bills to repeal the New-York Registry act and to authorize New-York to acquire property in Putnam and Westchester Counties for the better supply of water to the City. The Governor's Message was received and read, and the Senate adjourned.

The Assembly was called to order by the Clerk of the last House, and the Secretary of State administered the oath to the members. A protest against the swearing in of Mr. CAREY, of New-York, was submitted on behalf of Mr. TWOMBLY. The Clerk decided that the presentation of the protest at that time was out of order, and Mr. CAREY was sworn. Mr. HITCHMAN was then chosen Speaker, and, on taking the Chair, made a few remarks. The other offices were filled by the other candidates of the Democratic caucus. The Governor's Message was read, and with the reports of the Controller and Auditor were ordered to be printed. [A synopsis of the report of the Controller was printed in the TIMES yesterday morning, and the Message and the Auditor's report appear in our columns today.] A bill was introduced to amend the Militia law. A petition from Mr. TWOMBLY, the contestant for the seat occupied by Mr. CAREY, from the Seventh New-York District, was submitted by Mr. GLEASON, who moved for a committee of five on the petition. The motion was lost, and the petition went to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The afternoon session was devoted to selecting seats, and the House adjourned.

Gov. Hoffman's Message.

Gov. HOFFMAN'S reputation will not be improved by the Message which he sent to the Legislature yesterday. It is a weak and discreditable document, and will be accepted as evidence of his abject vassalage to the corupt combination that rules the State. It concedes much space to trivial or irrelevant topics, suppresses or perverts facts concerning questions about which the tax-payers feel a lively curiosity, and makes no reference to matters that have awakened the deepest interest in the community. It is a Message of which a statesman would be ashamed, and of which a tool of Tammany would alone be content to proclaim himself the author.

Two-fifths of the Message are devoted to Federal affairs. The tariff, the financial policy of the National Treasury, and the recently-enacted Election law are topics to which Tammany's candidate for the Presidency directs his attention. His views are commonplace, and in regard to specie payments, positively silly. He declares that resumption may be effected by the Government within twelve months, and he declares that the banks have no responsibility in the matter—that they have no duties to perform in reference to a return to specie payments. The determination of Congress and the President to secure an honest election provokes him beyond measure. He cannot conceal his wrath against the means employed, and to be employed, to break down the infamous agencies on which his party have relied for success in this City.

What interest does Gov. HOFFMAN suppose the people of this State feel in his opinions respecting national politics? These might be appropriate in a Democratic convention, and they will be looked for when his masters of the Ring succeed in putting him on the track for the Presidency. In the meantime his duties are of a different character. Who wants to know what he thinks about the tariff, or the management of the Treasury? These subjects are out of place in a paper which is supposed to be devoted to the affairs of the State. The space he surrenders to them should have been occupied with an exposition of questions properly within the sphere of his office, and in reference to which the public eagerly desire information.

There is the Erie bill, for example. What does the Governor say about that? His friends plead that he signed it without being alive to its scope and operation. We have been unable to accept the excuse, because we know that for a full fortnight before signing it he was publicly apprised, day after day, of its effect upon the interests of the stockholders. Dropping this point, however, we have a right to ask what Gov. HOFFMAN thinks in regard to the measure with whose operation he is now familiar? He has seen it used as a cover for wholesale swindling, and for frauds which should have entailed upon their perpetrators familiarity with Sing Sing. He knows that it has made FISK, Jr., a power in the Democratic Party and in the State by means which have disgraced the State, and would be intolerable to any party not controlled by unprincipled intriguers like those of the Ring. Thoughtful Democrats have appealed to the Governor to throw FISK overboard, and to urge upon the Legislature the repeal of a statute which has licensed rascality, and given the rascals an indefinite term of power. On this whole subject how does the Governor deliver himself? He is absolutely silent. Not a word in regard to it comes from his pen. He neither rebukes the crimes which the Erie bill made easy and safe, nor the criminals who have availed themselves of it to plunder and ruin a great corporation. Despite the warning of decent Democrats, he undertakes to cary FISK upon his shoulders. And by his silence in the presence of the appeals that have been addressed to him, he lends his sanction a second time to the most infamous piece of legislation which disgraces the statute books of this or any other State.

There are other matters scarcely less notorious, which a Governor faithful to his oath of office could not pass unnoticed. The campaign lately conducted in this State brought to light a long series of iniquities. The Judiciary of this City has been proved to be tainted with corruption and dishonor, and Gov. HOFFMAN has himself been charged with using his opportunities to enlarge the power of the very Judges who are known to be identified with the Erie swindlers and the Tammany thieves. The new charter, which Gov. HOFFMAN sanctioned last Spring, has been divested of the false pretences that were employed to secure its passage, and the machinery it provides has been turned to the vilest partisan uses. The Police force of the City has been converted into a partisan agency; and the Central Park, once the pride and glory of our citizens, has been made subject to influences which contaminate and degrade everybody and everything they come into contact with. The law requiring the City Controller to exhibit the affairs of his department has been defied; the Mayor, who has authority to exact from the Controller a report, neglects his duty; and meanwhile there are specific allegations to the effect that four or five millions of the tax-payers' money have been corruptly applied. The Legislature alone can bring the great wrong to a stand-still, and unravel the frauds and mysteries of the Controller's office, and the Governor cannot be unmindful of the authority he might exert in the premises. Other allegations indicate default as between the City and the State—the work of the gang who carry the City Government in their pockets. Then there is the general arraignment of the City officials and their masters, on account of the frauds they systematically perpetuate, the wrongdoing by which they acquire power, and the base purposes to which it is applied. The system under which the City is governed, and the men connected with its administration, are indicted at the bar of public opinion as inimical to republican freedom, and as a scandal to the age in which we live. Such are a few of the topics which an honest and efficient Governor would embrace in his Message. Not one of them is touched by Gov. HOFFMAN. He has much to say in reference to "the Oyer and Terminer," the Salt Springs, the revision of the statutes, and matters which, by comparison, are trifling. But the absorbing questions of the hour—the questions which at this moment agitate a great community to its centre, and furnish the starting-points of an agitation which must lead to reform or revolution—receive from the man who occupies the Governor's chair not the slightest attention.

Only one conclusion is possible. It is that Gov. HOFFMAN is the obedient creature of the shameful gang which constitutes the Tammany-Erie combination. He is at Albany to do their bidding. It is idle to talk of his antecedents, of his personal character, or of the ambition he cherishes. He must be judged as he is—as the mere instrument of unscrupulous men; and all his hopes of political preferment rest upon the support they are willing to give him. The fact that he consented to be the candidate of the Erie Ring, with all its crimes, and of the Tammany Ring, with a record as black as circumstances can make it, was fatal to all his pretensions as a politician relying upon his merits. The Message we print this morning is the crowning evidence of his bondage, and of his utter unfitness for the position into which he has been thrust, by means as degrading to himself as to the State which is now paying the penalties of Democratic rule.

Why Journalists are So Much Respected.

It appears that we are all strangely in the dark about the leading events of the war between Prussia and France. To begin with, the battle of Wissembourg, early in the war, was won by the French—whereas most of us thought that the Prussians were victors. It is commonly supposed that McMAHON failed to effect a junction with the forces under BAZAINE; but this is not the case—the two Generals combined their armies, and are still fighting with great success. Again, it is generally believed that BAZAINE was obliged to surrender at Metz; but this is merely another of our delusions—the General in question has won innumerable great battles, and to this hour Metz has not surrendered. To take still another instance, there is an impression abroad that Paris is now invested by the German armies. We cannot account for the prevalence of this idea, but the truth is that the Germans are now distant at least ten days' march from Paris, and the whole of TROCHU'S army is posted outside the city. This version of the history of the war is furnished by the World, of this City, which has the reputation of being exceedingly well informed on all foreign subjects. We suppose there is no denying its statements. The Tribune yesterday gave a complete summary of the World's special history of the war, and people who collect remarkable specimens of journalistic enterprise had better get that summary, and learn to admire the "brilliancy" of the World's correspondents and editors. The treatment of war news by the World is one of the things of which journalists ought to be proud, and which help to explain how it is that journalism is so much respected by the public.

Another article, published by the Tribune yesterday, will also be interesting to journalists who take a sincere pride in their calling, and wish to see it universally respected. To begin with, the fact must be well known that notoriously bribed journals always bring charges of corruption against all papers which try to do their duty honestly. Hence the World, caught with its hands full of TWEED'S money, invented a story about an unpaid bill for the enormous sum of thirteen thousand dollars, as accounting for the opposition of the TIMES to the Ring—and hence the satellite of the Herald, and a few other unprincipled sheets, have been instructed by the Ring to repeat this story ever since. The Tribune now expresses its belief that not less than $50,000 was paid by Tammany in one way or another to the Herald and the Telegram during last year alone. No one supposes that the proprietor of the Herald is aware of this turpitude on the part of his servants—still less that he touched a dollar of the money. But the nature of the support given to the Tammany Ring by the Herald ought to be sufficient to convince everybody that dirty work has been going on somewhere. The Tribune goes on to assert, upon the authority of a pamphlet just published, that WILLIAM M. TWEED secured the services of the Sun during the late canvass "by the payment of so much cash down, and the promise of monthly stipends." What answer will be made to this charge remains to be seen; but we cannot ignore the fact that a similar accusation brought against the Sun, in regard to a transaction with JAMES FISK, Jr., was published in the Tribune a week or so ago, and was not denied by the paper implicated. Instead of retuting the charge of taking a bribe for suppressing a certain article, as everybody must have hoped the Sun would do, it simply singled out and abused a gentleman connected with the Tribune. This was a clear case of allowing judgment to go against it by default.

The systematic corruption of the Press by the Tammany and Erie cliques will begin to excite proper attention whenever the public once more shows any disposition to regard corruption as a thing wrong in itself, and fatal to the best interests of society. Any journalist who now faithfully performs his duty is made a marked man by all the bribed hacks in the country, and any paper which refuses to take bribes is sure to be denounced as "corrupt" by the rascals who accept money from any hand which offers it. For example, the accusations made by the TIMES against TWEED and his gang have never been disproved, but the hirelings employed by TWEED have simply been instructed to trump up some insane charge concerning the motives of these attacks. There are possibly some who really believe that the World calls TWEED a swindler one day and an angel the next from sheer conviction, and that the TIMES would not abuse TWEED if somebody paid it thirteen thousand dollars. People who put any faith in the World's foreign dispatches must be fools enough for anything. Thus, the task of serving the public with fidelity is obstructed by the efforts of the very journals which have taken money to betray the public. If the exposures made by the Tribune yesterday could accomplish a wholesome change in public sentiment in regard to all journals bribed by the Tammany gang, and if those exposures further tended to purify the atmosphere of journalism generally, our contemporary would have accomplished a signal service. But we fear that the time is not yet ripe for reform, and that a great portion of the public think none the worse of a journal because it is proved to have taken bribes.

Mr. David Dudley Field and the Erie Litigation.

The report of the proceedings in the case of FISK, Jr., vs. the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Company, which we published yesterday, is well worth studying by all who desire to understand the nature of the connection between Mr. DAVID DUDLEY FIELD and the Erie litigation. A motion was lately made in this case, at a term held by Judge BRADY, on the part of the defendants, to change the place of trial from the County of New-York to the County of Albany. This motion was granted by the Judge, "unless," as he said, "the plaintiff prefers it shall be to the adjoining County of Rensselaer." This was, of course, a decision in the defendant's favor; and it is the universal custom of the winning party in such suits to prepare to take charge of the entry of the order expressing the decision of the Court. The beaten party has no business to meddle or interfere with it. But in this case, under the direction of FISK'S senior counsel, and contrary to custom and right, FISK'S counsel at once entered an imperfect order, and then immediately served notice of appeal from the imperfect order thus entered by himself.

Judge BRADY, however, blocked this petty scheme of the distinguished counselor, by requiring him to show cause, on the 20th day of December last, before him, (the Judge was then holding a special term of the Court,) why this imperfect order should not be made perfect, and state fully what the Court had decided, and what had been done in the premises under the decision. On this occasion the counsel for the respective parties appeared, and what should be embraced and contained in the order to be settled was fully discussed.

The defendant's counsel insisted that the order should be settled in these words: "The Court having announced its decision that the place of trial be changed from the County of New-York to the County of Albany, unless the plaintiff's counsel shall elect that it be changed to the County of Rensselaer; and, the plaintiff's counsel having thereupon elected that the change shall be to the County of Rensselaer; hereupon it is ordered that the place of trial in this action be and the same hereby is changed from the County of New-York to the County of Rensselaer," and presented the same for settlement and adoption.

Mr. FIELD strenuously opposed this form of an order, and, in his argument, gave the Judge his idea of the difference between the meaning and significatfon of the two words, "elect" and "prefer," and fully presented his objections to the proposed order.

Judge BRADY, after hearing all the parties for and against the adoption of the form of the order thus submitted, said, in substance, that the proposed order was in accordance with his decision, and he should adopt it, and, after signing the same, remarked: "I have now settled the order in the case of 'FISK vs. The Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Company," and then proceeded with the other business of his Court. Mr. FISK'S senior counsel immediately withdrew from Judge BRADY'S Court, stepped across the hall of the Court-house into the Supreme Court Chambers, where Judge BARNARD was holding Court, and procured, or caused to be procured, within thirty minutes after his withdrawal from Judge BRADY'S Court, one of the most extraordinary ex-parte orders, and by a long way the most disgraceful one. he has ever obtained in the interest of his client, FISK,—and this upon an affidavit so brief that we give it in full, as follows:

SUPREME COURT.—JAMES FISK, Jr., vs. The Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Company and others.

City and County of New-York: WM. A. SCHAMP, being sworn, says:

1. I am a counselor-at-law and a clerk in the office of the plaintiff's attorney.
2. I was present this day at the settlement of the order changing the place of trial herein, and heard all that passed. The plaintiff's counsel expressly declined to elect to take the County of Rensselaer, or any other county other than New-York, and consented to no statement on that subject in the order, except a bare expression of preference for Rensselaer over Albany County.

W. A. SCHAMP.

Sworn before me Dec. 20, 1870.
RICHARD C. BEAMISH, Notary Public, New-York.

On this affidavit, we say, Mr. FIELD obtained from Judge GEORGE G. BARNARD an ex-parte order, requiring the defendants to "show cause, at a special term of the Court to be held at the Court-house in New-York City on Tuesday, the 27th inst., at 11 A. M., why the order herein entered this day should not be corrected so as to conform to the facts stated in the said affidavit." Let it be observed that this was an order to render the order made by Judge BRADY corrected "so as to conform to the facts stated in the said affidavit" of WM. A. SCHAMP. A more unjust decision was never made. In a word—it was an order that a Judge who did not hear or decide a motion, who was, in fact, wholly ignorant of what was or was not decided, after argument of a motion before another Judge, should correct the order and decision of the Judge who did hear and decide the motion.

If such an order could be sustained, what a commentary it would be upon judicial proceedings; and now, that it has been decided by Judge LEARNED that it cannot be sustained, what a commentary it is upon DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, who condescends to carry on proceedings of this kind for the benefit of JAMES FISK, Jr. Judge LEARNED characterizes this proceeding of FISK'S lawyer "as preposterous," and adds: "The evils of such a practice as is here attempted are too plain to need comment." It is precisely because such practices do need comment that we call the attention of the public to them; and until those guilty of "such practices" are made to feel the full penalty of public scorn, "the evils" growing out of them will continue to affect the community.

"Let Him Go."

As if the corruption of Judges, the stupidity of juries, and the apathy of the Police were not sufficiently powerful agents in cultivating the lawlessness which virtually rules New-York City today, additional encouragement is given to it by the supineness or timidity of its victims. Hardly a day passes that some criminal, arraigned for one of the minor offenses against person or property, does not have to be discharged from failure of the complainant to appear and prosecute. Repeatedly, also, it happens that the victim of some atrocious assault or highway robbery will refuse to give the name or any description of his assailant, even when known to him. Among what, for want of any more distinctive term, we may call the rougher class of our population, this is almost the rule, partly from a certain false notion of honor, and partly from a sentiment of revolt against authority, and consequent sympathy with the law-breaker. So, to use a parallel illustration, even in so horrible crime as that of DUIGNAN, the Elizabeth parricide, his family forget the murdered mother in their anxiety to screen the assassin son. An instance more in point is that of the young man who was stabbed on Monday evening in a dance-house in Spring-street, and who expressly declined giving any clue to the perpetrator of the deed.

In many cases, of course, this reticence results from fear of after danger, or from desire on the part of the injured person to avoid exposure of disreputable circumstances connected with the crime. But, whatever may be the motive, such concealment is radically wrong, and ought to be discountenanced, or, if all other means fail, punished as detrimental to the public safety. If the knights of the pistol and slung-shot confined their gentle attentions to that class of people who believe that silence, under such provocation, is golden, there might be less reason for complaint. But unfortunately these ruffians are emboldened by impunity to more flagitious acts. What complainants in such cases seem to forget is, that besides the injury to themselves there is also an even graver injury to the State, and that every citizen owes it, as a public duty, to bring wrong-doers to justice. Refusal to perform this duty, however it may be regarded technically, is nothing more nor less than compounding felony, and should be so treated and punished. It is not strange, perhaps, that this sort of collusion with crime is so rife, when powerful banks and wealthy merchants set the example by treating with the thieves for the return of stolen property, becoming virtually receivers of stolen goods. But the evil is attaining such a magnitude that it may soon be necessary to take stern measures to suppress it. If, as more primitive wisdom once exacted, the recusant complainant were made to take the place of the villain whom he thus rescues from justice, and to suffer the penalty that should have been his, we might soon notice a gratifying improvement in the number of criminals brought to trial, and a corresponding decrease of crime.

Crime in Vermont.

House-breaking was once cultivated as a fine art, and even now, in spite of modern policemen, CHUBBS' locks, burglar-alarms, and other precautions, we hear of adroit professional strokes that would make the fortune of the operators in any honest branch of business. In this country, where any one can make a living who will work, such exploits are more rare. When they occur, cracksmen from beyond the sea are apt to be the heroes of them, and the scene selected is almost invariably one of our great cities. There is, however, no rule without an exception, and of late a signal one has been presented in Vermont.

Ever since 1867, a gang of depredators has been operating with marvelous success and impunity along the border of Vermont and New-Hampshire. They have robbed jewelers, gunsmiths, clothing, boot and shoe and grocery stores, stables and hotels, as well as private dwellings. They have amassed plunder estimated at tens of thousands of dollars. They have been suspected, but never caught; and so with the swelling proceeds of their rascality they have gone clothed, so to speak, in purple and fine linen, and have fared sumptuously every day. All these joys have been made possible through the skill and audacity of a young brigand named HANDLON, who is described as being under twenty years of age. His whole gang, indeed, is said to be of tender years, and to have obeyed him in every movement as faithfully as the men in green served Robin Hood, or the familiars of the road bowed to the mandates of Claude Duval. During four years this modern Jack Sheppard has organized more than fifty robberies, in every one of which—such was his sagacity—both principal and assistants got off scot free.

The end of this prosperous career has, however, come at last, and HANDLON is doomed to find, like so many others, that the way of the transgressor, if "a primrose path of dalliance" for a time, is sure to be hard and flinty in the end. We are not informed who has been the Jonathan Wild of this dénouement, but it is certain that the young robber chief is in custody with most of his adherents. They are said to be, we are sorry to say, for the most part, sons of substantial farmers. The fate of these youthful marauders will be a dismal one indeed, for although the gallows for offenses like theirs is a thing of the past, the social degradation which will be associated with their detection and punishment will be hardly more enviable.

MINOR TOPICS.

Any one who desires to understand the effect of Democratic management upon canal traffic cannot do better than read attentively the Auditor's report, published in our impression this day. We shall discuss this remarkable document with the fullness it deserves another day—in the meanwhile we hope our readers will study it for themselves. There are facts in it which ought to be read in their official form, and we do not desire anybody to receive a version of them at second hand. What we have to thank the Democrats for in this department of our commerce will be very clear to those who will take the pains to read the Auditor's report, with a simple desire to find out the truth.

King WILLIAM in the Palace of LOUIS XIV., will certainly form a favorite subject with the historical painters of the future; and no better motto could be appended to such a tableau than the concluding words of his yesterday's address to the German officers assembled there: "It would be censurable to make any peace which involves the continuation of the duties which have brought you here." This is "the present result of all the glories," so far as France is concerned—to have a conqueror insisting on his rights of conquest, in the palace of her proudest King. The mantle of the "great monarch" has fallen upon the Emperor-elect of Germany, only to make him the avenger of spoliations that helped to rear the palace from which he issued his proclamation. Let it be hoped, for the sake of Germany and of the world, that the compulsory restitution may not foster the same spirit as did the original robbery.

We have shown elsewhere that Gov. HOFFMAN has contrived to produce his annual Message without a single allusion to any of the subjects upon which he and his party have been arraigned. If P. "Brains" SWEENY himself had drawn up the document, it could scarcely have been more adroitly managed. Gov. HOFFMAN had to face a number of questions which inevitably involve him and his party in great disgrace, and he dealt with them by evading them altogether. He does not even put forward the plea urged by some of his friends, that if the Tweedites are corrupt, Republicans are equally corrupt. Perhaps he has the sense to see—what his supporters do not—that this excuse is false in itself, and dishonorable to any one who uses it. The Governor's Message is enough to excite the envy of a pettifogging lawyer, but otherwise it is totally devoid of value.

Gen. TROCHU has clearly and conclusively expounded his theory of what constitutes the true efficiency of an army. He gives, as is well known, especial prominence to what he describes as the moral force of the military organization. No better comment on how much personal influence counts in controling large bodies of men, can be found than in the power wielded by the Governor of Paris over the impulsive populace he has for some months so successfully ruled. The demand referred to in today's telegrams "to make a sortie with enormous force," will probably be met with the same grim resolve as many that have preceded it. As the London Spectator lately remarked, the spectacle of the sombre, unyielding determination of Gen. TROCHU to adhere to his own plans, and calmly to confide in their success, is the hopefullest feature in all the dark outlook for Paris.

The "festive season" is nearly over, but the effects of it seem likely to linger for some time yet. It is usually at this time of the year that the largest number of crimes are committed, and already our local columns bear witness to the fact that the "law of averages" will tell its usual tale. Several women have been killed by their husbands, and numbers of people struck down in brawls. Drink is at the bottom of all the mischief, and any one who is much about the streets now, especially at night, will be tempted to wish that WENDELL PHILLIPS could have his own way with the grog-shops. There appear to be thousands of people who make it a practice to spend a week or two in getting drunk at this time of the year. The evil rapidly increases, and a really practicable remedy for it has not yet been suggested. We may be very sure, however, that while laziness and unlimited whisky are the rewards of "political exertion" in this City, the ministers of religion, and the other teachers of morality, will find their labor in vain.

England has evidently got a very confirmed attack of the war fever. The pacific ex-President of the Board of Trade did not retire a moment too soon, for the new struggle between Liberals and Conservatives is to be, who is prepared to spend most money on military preparations. The Conservative platform announced in today's telegrams has evidently been adopted by the Government in power, for we have in the latest mail files some hints of a stupendous scheme, said to be under consideration, for the fortification of London. It appears that a similar project was discussed ten years ago, and that the most feasible of the plans then submitted consisted in erecting a number of small forts, one mile apart, and at a distance of five miles outside of London. To defend the forts themselves a quarter of a million of men were considered requisite, and to operate against the enemy in front of them another quarter of a million. At the present rate of military preparation the "armed peace" of the last ten years will be found by England to have been a very trifling burden when compared with what will shortly have to be paid for. It might, after all, have been cheaper to have stretched a helping hand to France.

The pamphlet entitled The Biter Bit, in relation to the alleged trafficking between TWEED and the Sun, has been forwarded to us, and the particulars relating to it will be found in an advertisement. Until the Sun has had the opportunity of making some statement in reply to this pamphlet, we shall make no comment upon it except this—that it is not a publication which any true journalist will read with pleasure. It is to be observed, however, that the chief editor of the Sun is not accused by the author of any participation in the transactions described. For the rest, we should be glad if the whole story could be disproved.

"WAR" AT WALLACK'S THEATRE.

Mr. ROBERTSON'S newest play of "War" was seen last night for the first time at Wallack's Theatre. The house was full, and, besides being gay and fashionable, was also deeply interested. A new play at this theatre has grown, in truth, to be a very important event; and "War," it may be said, is doubly a novelty, since it is acted here, if not before being acted in London, at least before we know how it has been received there. Hence, none of the prejudice existed last evening, either way, which knowledge of the effect a dramatic work has already wrought is apt to engender. The audience thus called upon to judge from the beginning, and unaffected by any second-hand opinion, was closely attentive throughout, and unusually quick, alike to praise and to criticism. We may say, at the outset, that while the first predominated, opportunities for the last sometimes occurred. A fashion has sprung up, traceable in part to mistaken kindness, and partly to the public craving for immediate sensation, of calling all new things the best things. We must deviate from the custom as regards "War." It is not Mr. ROBERTSON'S best play. Perhaps, in some respects, it is his worst. The bombast of some passages is unworthy of him. It is amusing to see, in ROBERTSON, a fresh instance of the fact that writers who excel in witty dialogue almost always, in attempting sentiment, stumble into bathos. SHERIDAN'S example, however, has not warned others, with less claim to toleration than ROBERTSON, of this danger; and with the latter, as well as the former—if with inferior grace—we can excuse occasional turgidity for the sake of the splendor of epigram and felicitous repartee that often surround and set it off.

The story of "War" is easy to tell. A young soldier, Oscar, (Mr. GEORGE CLARKE,) is engaged to Lottie (Miss MADELINE HENRIQUES.) War breaks out between France and Germany, and an order reaches Oscar, who is in the French Army, to join his command when just on the eve of his wedding. He is wounded on the dismal field of Woerth, and is supposed to be dead. But his affianced, the daughter of a German, seeks him on the battle-field and finds him there sorely wounded. They are then married in a church hard by. After this Oscar is supposed to be dead again—there is no great affluence of incident here—and Lottie mourns him as one lost forever. But the missing one turns up again—as we too readily anticipate—and all is rosy and joyful once more. Mr. ROBERTSON, while choosing a new arena for most of his action, appears to have been shrewdly cautious about entirely abandoning ground on which he has been so successful. The first act, therefore, takes place at Sevenoaks, in Kent, and a pretty picture of English rural life pleases the eye and enlists the sympathy of the spectator, before he is taken to the harsher spots that witness and are needful to the main action.

The first act is of a bustling, and even of a frolicsome nature; and the art of the dramatist is in this cleverly exhibited, since a striking contrast is thus effected with the sombre business to come. Laughing girls, a beautiful rural landscape, a joyful betrothal breakfast, and some ingenious oppositions of comic characters pave the way excellently for the deeper tints that follow. It may be objected that the people of the drama constitute somewhat too polyglot an assemblage; but it becomes evident in due time how essential this is to the author's purpose. Messrs. GILBERT, FISHER, BROUGHAM and CLARKE, and Miss MADELINE HENRIQUES and Miss EMMA TRACY sustain the burden of the act, and indeed of the whole piece, with care, and sometimes with praiseworthy elaboration and closeness of study.

The "set" of the second act is gloomily impressive. Just now, when the ocean cable groans and the Press teems with accounts of blood and slaughter, such a scene fills us with a sense of ghastly reality. We know that the pale, upturned faces, set in the rigidity of death, the mangled horses with their stare of wild agony, the dismounted cannon, and broken, scattered accoutrements, really exist, as we gaze, upon a score of sanguinary fields. This is no mere dramatic tableau, but horrible truth; and Mr. WALLACK has arranged the details with his usual keen eye to picturesque effect. No histrionic scene in our memory has brought so vividly to mind as the stage of Wallack's in the second act of "War." BYRON'S famous passage in the third canto of "Childe Harolde:"

"The midnight brought the signal-sound of strife,
The morn the marshaling in arms—the day
Battle's magnificently stern array!
The thunder-clouds close o'er it, which when rent
The earth is cover'd thick with other clay,
Which her own clay shall cover, heap'd and pent,
Rider and horse—friend, foe—in one red burial blent."

This solemn picture constitutes the ch

immediate moment, with its tears and its blood, its mad thirst for glory, and its awful expiation, the play has an attractiveness which will be proved, we make sure, by a protracted tenure of the boards.

The new play will not, however, make us forget that it is in sketching English society of the latest modern types that ROBERTSON has been most happy. He has been prosperous, like Punch, through his specialties, which have mingled with sportive dexterity bright episodes of beauty and fun. Lovely girls and piquant speeches, talk a trifle "fast" at times, but always clever and often sensible; "heavy swells," over-full of the selfish wisdom of the world; good for nothing people whom we love for their weaknesses, not for their strength, characters whose discourse is sprinkled all over with sprightly allusions to the living topics of today; all these, touched with much richness of color, and truth of drawing, and nicety of finish, with considerable acquired skill and not a little massive genius, form the contents of the magazine on which ROBERTSON has drawn to prove himself the master of modern comedy. And we may say of him that if not a CONGREVE or a SHERIDAN, his light burns with a brilliant lustre, and such as it is that it certainly pales before that of no contemporary.

ITALIAN OPERA.

The series of Italian opera performances at the Fourteenth-street Theatre will be commenced by a representation of "Il Trovatore," this evening. Mlle. CZILLAG's debut here on the lyric stage will be effected in this work. Signori LEFRANC and REYNA and Mme. GAZZANIGA will be heard also.

GERMAN OPERA.

Mme. LICHTMAY and the capable artists who for some weeks have attracted exceedingly large audiences to the Stadt Theatre, in this City, end their performances of German opera in that house with the present week. The company goes hence to the Academy of Music in Philadelphia, Mr. MAX MARETZEK assuming the management, and thus insuring our neighbors a season of continued interest. The repertory of the troupe is large, and the demands upon it have always had for response most satisfying representations.

The programme, interpreted at a public rehearsal, which was very largely attended, yesterday, consists of the overture to "Lurline," of HAYDN's "Third Mass," and of the music of "Preciosa." It should be remembered that the concert will begin at precisely 8 o'clock.

A Great Charity Ball—The Homeopathic Asylum for the Insane.

A great charity ball, in behalf of the State Homeopathic Asylum for the Insane, will take place on the 10th of this month. That it will be a success, no one can doubt who reads the list of officers. Such ladies as Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Ralph Mead, Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Mrs. James Brooks, Mrs. Connolly, Mrs. Blodget, Mrs. Phelps, and Mrs. Col. Raymond are sure to give éclat to anything they undertake; but beyond these are a committee of gentlemen, and a list of two or three hundred managers, in which every name carries a promise of success.

Some time last Winter a law passed our Legislature giving $160,000 toward the erection of a State Lunatic Asylum, which is, we understand, to be located somewhere in Orange County. Before this money can be paid in, a like sum must be raised by private charity; and it is to raise a portion of the amount that this charity ball will be given on the 10th. Dr. GEORGE F. FOOT, medical superintendent and general agent has already collected, by his own efforts, about $70,000, and we have no doubt that the ball will largely increase this sum, for the ladies above named are working diligently to make it a brilliant affair, and have already sold a large portion of the boxes, while the tickets are selling rapidly. We learn that the first design of this ball was suggested by Mrs. RALPH MEAD, who refused to other positions for the arduous post of Secretary, thus undertaking more work and more responsibility than seemed possible for one person to perform. But when a woman's heart is in an object, she rejects all idea of fatigue, and Mrs. MEAD has been indefatigable in her exertions in behalf of this good cause, while she has been so ably assisted by the other ladies that there is no longer a doubt of a brilliant success.

The insane asylums of this State are sadly overcrowded, and thus rendered inefficient. Our own City Asylum at Blackwell's Island, though under the charge of Commissioners who leave no duty unperformed, and give more than usual attention to the unhappy inmates, is so crowded with the insane that large numbers are sent from sheer necessity to the Work-house, and though the Commissioners have strained all their energies to hasten the building of a new wing to the asylum, this class of disease increases on them so fast that they will not have sufficient room when that is done. It is a matter of necessity, then, that a new asylum should be built somewhere that will save us from a state of things that in the county poor-houses of the interior absolutely shames humanity.

Decision in the Erie vs. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Cases.

In the cases of the Erie Railway Company vs. the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company an opinion was yesterday filed by Chief-Justice BRADLEY, of New-Jersey, acting as Chancellor. It is held: First—That the Erie by acquiescing in the building of the Boonton branch, lost their right to complain. Second—Upon the ground that the Bergen tunnel is a public highway, without regard to other considerations, the Morris and Essex Company has a right to make a connection between their broad gauge track and the Erie Railway, so as to pass their trains through the tunnel. Whether such trains can pass without the payment of toll is not now decided. Third—That the Erie Company has precedence for all their time-table trains, and that the Morris and Essex must submit to their regulations. Fourth—The application of the Morris and Essex for a receiver for the tunnel is denied, no legal ground being shown on which to base such a decision.

Pew Renting at Plymouth Church.

The annual sale of pews at auction in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, took place last evening, and the bidding was quite spirited. There was a large attendance present, and there was of course quite a little strife to secure the choice seats at the most favorable terms, but the auctioneer seldom brought down the hammer while there was any chance of getting another bid on a seat. All the seats were disposed of except the chairs, and the church will be opened today, in order to give those who may desire them an opportunity to purchase. On Saturday night the church will be opened, in order to give members who will not require an entire pew an opportunity to dispose of as many sittings as they can spare.

The auctioneer, Mr. H. O. PILLSBURY, was introduced by Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, Mr. BEECHER said he hoped the seats would not bring as much this year as they had before, but the remarks of Mr. BEECHER had no effect.

The following are among the prices paid for some of the choice seats: H. C. Bowen, $460; H. B. Claflin, $300; Joseph Howard, Jr., $315; John P. Howard, $310; Mr. Sage, $360; M. S. Beach, $325; Stephen B. White, $325; R. C. White, $300; Jas. Freeland, $300; J. P. Carroll, $310; A. Storrs, $300; G. Swift, $310; H. C. Bowen, $305.

BORDEAUX, Jan. 3.—Advices from Paris to Dec. 30, received here, state that the Parisians unite in urging Gen. RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A Train Runs Off a Bridge in Tennessee—Cars Smashed and Several Persons Killed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 3.—An accident occurred at 10 o'clock this morning on the iron bridge over the Nonconnah Creek, about ten miles below this place, on the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad, supposed to have been caused by the breaking of an axle of the front passenger car. The forward and the second cars were precipitated over the bridge, and took fire. One car was entirely destroyed by fire, and the other broken to pieces. The rear cars were uninjured, though severely shaken. The locomotive and tender passed safely over the bridge. It is supposed that five persons, all negroes, were killed. A young man named DAVIS, is, perhaps, fatally injured. Several other persons sustained slight injuries.

LATER.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 3.—The accident which occurred this morning on the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad was more terrible in its results than at first reported. It seems that as the train was crossing an iron bridge in Nonconnah Bottom, five miles south of this place, the axles of a baggage-car broke and a second-class passenger-car was dashed down an enbankment, and taking fire was soon burned. PETER KIRBY, the conductor of the train, at the time of the accident, was standing by the stove in the passenger-car, and as it went over the enbankment, he was burned badly by the stove, which was thrown on him. He managed, however, to extricate himself, and climbed out of a window, and then worked heroically with others to save the poor negroes, who filled the car; but the flames spread with such rapidity that nearly all the wounded were burned to death. Another passenger car was dashed through a bridge and literally smashed to pieces, though very few of the occupants were seriously injured. A number of surgeons and others went from this city to the scene, and everything was done to relieve the sufferers, most of whom were brought here to the hospital. No accurate report can be given of the number of the lost and killed. SALLIE AMES, MARY DEAHHORTA and four colored persons were fatally injured; a youth named DAVIS, of Horn Lake, Miss., —— WHITE, omnibus agent, was severely injured, and three colored persons were slightly injured. Peter Kinley, conductor; C. C. Thompson, of Chuluhoma, Miss.; Felix Devey, of Horn Lake, Miss.; W. B. Walbin, Mr. Samuel River, Horn Lake, William White and Charles Ecols were taken out of the burning car by the conductor and escaped being burned, but their injuries are so serious that little hopes are entertained of their recovery.

THE WEST.

Reception of Archbishop Kenrick at St Louis—Statistics of the Past Year in Colorado.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 2.—Archbishop KENRICK, who has been absent a year in Rome, where he took a prominent part in the Ecumenical Council, was formally received today at St. John's Church. The various Catholic organizations, numbering 2,000 members, paraded the streets with banners and music. The church was crowded, and thousands were unable to enter. Father RYAN delivered the opening address. The Archbishop said, with respect to his course in the Ecumenical Council, he would state briefly the motives which governed his actions. Often in the debate he had perhaps seemed opposed to the great doctrine of the Church, but this arose from the fact that there were arguments which he could not explain, and his opposition was due to the misconception of the real character of the principle involved. After a close examination of the question, he would say that his motives for submission were simply due to an unshaken belief in the authority of the Catholic Church. The reason of the necessity for rendering obedience to the Church was self-evident and could not be gainsaid. He would call to the remembrance of the Church that Scriptural declaration, "Thou hast the word of eternal life," and reminded them of the trusts committed to Peter and Paul.

Evidences of a Horrible Crime in Chicago—Body of an Eastern Man Found Bruised and Gagged.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Yesterday morning the body of a dead man was found floating in the lake basin. Today's investigation renders it pretty certain that it is the body of WILLIAM GUMBLETON, from No. 154 Lombard-street, Boston. In his pocket was found a letter addressed to WILLIAM GUMBLETON by BLAKE BROS. & CO., bankers, No. 52 Wall-street, New-York. The remains present a shocking appearance. They are badly bruised, and a rope is tightly tied over the mouth, gag fashion, and fastened at the back of the head. The deceased has black hair and chin whiskers. He had on a gray tweed coat, black pants, drab shirt and high boots.

STATE LEGISLATURES.

Organization of the Arkansas Legislature—The Missouri Senatorship—Prospect of a Union of the Republicans—Proposition from the Democratic Caucus.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 3.—A special dispatch from Little Rock to the Democrat says that the Legislature organized today. TANNEHILL, the nominee of Gov. CLAYTON, was elected Speaker of the House. All the officers of the Senate are Clayton men. The Brooks and Hedges delegation were not admitted to either House.

The members of the Missouri Legislature have nearly all arrived at Jefferson City. Several of the more prominent candidates for United States Senator are also in the city and working energetically. A Republican caucus was held to-night. A special to the Democrat says several speeches were made advising harmony and a union by both wings in the organization of the Legislature, and the election of a United States Senator. These sentiments were applauded loudly. Resolutions were then offered pledging such action, pending which a committee from a Democratic caucus entered with a proposition inviting the Republicans to act with the Democrats in the organization of the House, and the election of a Senator. The proposition was received with silence, and a motion made to lay it on the table, but no action was taken. Other speeches were made, favoring unity and harmony between the two Republican wings, which were applauded. The caucus then adjourned until to-morrow. There is a fair prospect of unity between the two wings of the Republican Party.

Message of the Governor of Ohio—Report of the Secretary of State.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 3.—The Legislature met at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Both Houses adjourned after the reading of Gov. HAYES' Message. The Governor discusses only local matters, and says that the increase of local taxation has been far greater than the growth of the State in business, population or wealth; and asks the Legislature, by a wise legislation, to do all in its power to check the evil. He also thinks that the power of the cities, counties and other local authorities, to create public debts, opens the door to wastefulness, extravagance and corruption. He recommends that all the State, county, and municipal officers be paid fixed salaries and not recompensed by fees. The classification of convicts in the Penitentiary, and other prison reforms, are urged. He also asks that additional legislation to promote the interests of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home at Xenia be enacted. The report of the Secretary of State is just printed. He gives the population of sixty-seven cities and villages in Ohio having over 1,500 inhabitants each, the total being 697,000, being an increase of 248,096 in ten years, or fifty-five per cent. The increase in the population of Ohio outside of these cities and villages is only about 70,000 in the last decade.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAM-SHIP CITY OF BRUSSELS.

The Inman steam-ship City of Brussels, which left Liverpool on Dec. 22 and Queenstown on Dec. 23, reached this port yesterday. Her advices are later by two days than were those received Monday by the Calabria.

THE WAR.

Pere Hyacinthe on the Strife—A Sincere Alliance of the Two Peoples the Guarantee of Future Peace.

Père HYACINTHE delivered an address at the Hanoverian Rooms, in London, on Dec. 20, on the war between France and Germany. The room was densely crowded, says the Echo newspaper, and many were unable to gain admission. The Duke and Duchess of ARGYLL were among the occupants of the platform. Père HYACINTHE entered the room about 3¼ o'clock, and was received with some applause. He was dressed in a black frock coat and suit, and wore nothing to indicate that he belonged to any special order in the Church, or was indeed a minister of the Church at all. He is rather under the middle size and of middle age, with regular and harmonious features, dark and penetrating eyes and a charming smile. After some preliminary remarks, he proceeded to say that if the Government of France had abstained from interfering in the internal affairs of Germany—if it had abandoned the idea of acquiring what is called its natural frontiers, there would have been no fear of aggression or invasion. We had no interest, no right in preventing the unity of Germany. The speaker here proceeded to show that the unity of Germany was promoted by the policy of the Empire in advocating the unity of Italy, and he rendered justice to it for what it had done in this respect. The unity of Germany and the unity of Italy were results that existed in the force of things, and could not be resisted. But dynastic influences and the internal state of the Empire forced the Emperor to yield to the prejudices of certain statesmen and publicists and to the passions of the people. On the other hand, as little interest or right had Germany in opposing the greatness of France, as France in opposing the unity of Germany. Yet Germany would seem to have adopted toward France after the disaster of Sedan a policy as blind and as criminal as that which France practised toward Germany. Even the annihilation of France would be but temporary. France would rise from her misfortunes like Prussia herself after Jena. A new France would start from Sedan, and were Paris even in ashes it would have vengeance, for its soul and aspiration, and the end of the century would behold even more bloody scenes than its beginning. Germany was in the centre of Europe a source of intelligence and civilization, but there was danger that if it gave itself up to warlike traditions, the French Empire of the 2d of December would be followed by the German Empire of the 10th of December. As to the possession of Alsace and Lorraine, he regarded that as a secondary question. He did not think the possession of one or two provinces more necessary to the greatness of France, though he did not wish they should be lost to France. Some of his countrymen had gone so far as to say that if Alsace and Lorraine were lost, France would descend to the rank of a second-rate or third-rate Power. So thought England when she lost Calais; but what Englishman now regretted that Calais formed a portion of France? The real guarantee for peace between France and Germany was not the possession of one or two provinces, but a sincere and loyal alliance of the two peoples. It had been said that the Latin race was used up. That was not so. The Latin race had fallen, but it would rise again. As to the religious aspect, the Père HYACINTHE maintained that there was as little necessary antagonism in the question of religion as in politics. The time of religious wars had happily passed away. A war of religion would be an anachronism and an impossibility. With regard to the results of the war, he believed they would be three. Germany would have a political organization, a body corresponding to its intellectual and moral soul; she would be a powerful focus of civilization in the heart of France—pacific and liberal. France would be restored to herself, the legitimate promises of her great revolution accomplished, and the reign of sophists and courtesans abolished. The third result related to another country, which was equally his—not the country of his birth, but the country of his soul—Italy. Rome was now free. The temporal power of the Pope—useful, he freely acknowledged, in its own age, and for particular stages of European society—had long outlived its time. It had crumbled away, and he thanked God for an event that would minister to the unity of Italy, to the regeneration of the Latin races, and, above all, to the reform of the church always dear to him—the Catholic Church of Rome.

THE RAILROAD POWER.

Evil Results of the Existence of Great Monopolies—Corrupt Corporations—Speculations on the Remedy for the Evil by Charles Francis Adams, Jr.

One of the two most noteworthy articles of the January number of the North American Review, is on "The Government and Railroad Corporations," by CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr., the other being a paper by Gen. J. D. COX, on "Civil Service Reform," in which he sets forth in strong language the existing abuses and corruptions, and advocates competitive examinations, open to all, and tenure of office during good behavior as the remedy. Mr. ADAMS takes the position that the General Government must ultimately assume the control of railroads, although in the present incompetent condition of Congress and the corrupt state of the civil service, it would be likely to fail. He believes in experimental action for the present on the part of the different States. The following are some of the most striking passages of his interesting article:

Seventeen years ago six roads divided the route between Albany and Buffalo, and in 1853 these were consolidated into one. Three years ago four roads connected New-York with Chicago, and these four were then reduced to two. One year ago five roads divided among them the distance between the Atlantic and the Pacific; six months ago these five were practically reduced to three. How long will it be before these three are reduced to one? How long before consolidation, as yet confined to connecting, will extend to competing roads? It is perfectly useless to discuss the question whether the massing of wealth and of power is desirable or otherwise. It is sufficient to recognize the fact that it is inevitable—that it is a natural law of growth. Legislation could only wage a futile war against it; checked in one form, it would devise another; by indirections it would find directions out. It has been steadily going on from the beginning; it is now going on, and it is not likely to stop. No legislation can prevent it, even were such prevention desirable. Any attempt in this direction will but result in a recourse to subterfuge, and the practical reduction of law to a dead-letter. You cannot prevent, but you may, by looking at facts as they are, not inefficiently regulate. How this can best be done is the problem.

The power of these corporations in the hands of corrupt men as a disturbing and degrading influence in our politics, and the crying abuses so notorious in the internal administration of corporate affairs, have of late occasioned no inconsiderable degree of public solicitude. Examples of both descriptions of evil referred to are always at hand, and the year just past has been peculiarly prolific of them. Certain instances, however, pall by force of repetition; certain men succeed in acquiring a pre-eminence in infamy which actually destroys their value for purposes of illustration. The world grows weary of hearing of them. The frauds and outrages in the Erie management, for instance, have, perhaps, been dwelt upon ad nauseam. Not that justice has been, or, outside of a prison door, well can be done to their perpetrators, but nothing duplicating them can longer excite surprise. From the leading criminals themselves to the counsel who revel in their dirty work, these men have now brought all the discredit they can on everything with which they live in contact, from American credit down to the New-York Bar. It is, therefore, hardly worth while to go on with the contributions of another year to their long bead-roll of offenses. A new illustration from other quarters of the abuse of political influence would be more effective. Even if no evidence should be found to exist of the perpetration of fraud, yet the opportunity for it may exist so evidently—the way, if the will were only there—that the propriety of removing from strong humanity such an ever-present temptation may prove a subject worthy of grave discussion. Upon looking over the broad field, various scandals at once suggest themselves. The incidents of the recent Congress and its suspicious squandering of public lands would naturally be the first. Especially those vast grants which have endowed a single corporation—the Northern Pacific—with an appanage nearly equal to a dozen States of the size of Massachusetts, and hardly, if at all, falling short of the united areas of the five second-class European kingdoms of Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Portugal and Greece. At one time during the last Winter there were railroad schemes pending before Congress, which appropriated 400,000,000 acres of the public domain—an area larger than the whole original thirteen Colonies.

That the National Government must, then, soon or late, and in a greater or less degree, assume a railroad jurisdiction, is accepted as an obvious conclusion to be deduced from the irresistible development of the system in a course it has hitherto pursued. The next question is, when, and in what way, and to what extent, is this to be done? What is to be the basis of legislation? This now admits of almost infinite modification, ranging from public ownership on the one hand to the most limited regulation on the other. The same may be said as to extent of jurisdiction. It may be assumed over all roads lying in more than one State, or it may be confined to certain trunk lines specially designated as military and post roads. These questions is now premature to discuss. They constitute the final problem. All other proposed solutions of it, resting upon State regulation or State control, are but temporizing expedients, important simply as illustrating the practical value of certain theories. Such may prove instructive resting places; they can hardly be the final objective. The tendency of popular thought is now undoubtedly toward the ownership of railroads by the community. The success of this system in Belgium, and the agitation in regard to it in England and in certain portions of this country, make it eminently desirable that the experiment should be tried, if only with a view of testing a theory and giving a new direction to inquiry. The present is also a time peculiarly opportune in which to make the attempt, for it can now be essayed on a small scale, involving, at most, interests comparatively trifling. The result, as bearing on the final national problem, could not fail to be most instructive. It is impossible, in view of past experience, not to entertain grave doubts as to the result of any experiment of this sort, made through the political machinery which exists in America.

A safer solution of the difficulty may not improbably yet be found in effective regulation, than in State ownership. This last looks to the destruction of the principle of private corporate life as the basis of the railroad system, and to the adoption of the whole of it into the body politic. Regulation, on the other hand, proposes to have the Government, while preserving the separation between the body politic and all private industry, yet exercise an active control over its own creations. This is the tendency of legislation in many of the Western States, where the results of Government meddling are still fresh in the popular memory. Foremost among these States is Illinois. In the remarkable Constitution just adopted there the great principle is for the first time recognized that the railroad system is exceptional among all industrial pursuits, and must be recognized and dealt with as such. This in itself is an immense stride in advance. The one striking feature of the Illinois Constitution is the strong resolve of its framers to do away with what are known in England as "private bills," and in this country as special legislation. A sound system of government should recognize individuals no more than the laws of nature recognize them. The law should apply to all, without discrimination for or against.

This final result is not attained in the Illinois Constitution; had it been, the value of that instrument would have been more than doubled. Indeed, the provision made in it brings the innovator just to the fatal point; as yet he has done nothing, but the next step involves everything. In spite of its Constitution, Illinois must now slip back in the deep mire of special railroad legislation, or it must go on and solve the problem. The case stands thus: the Constitution implies the passage of (1) laws prescribing reasonable rates of charges on the different railroads, and (2) laws to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination and extortion in the rates of freight and passenger tariffs.

The Legislature should enact its general laws for the requirements of railroads, as it does to meet the innumerable civil and criminal complications which arise; but, in the one case as in the other, the judicial and discretionary action under the general law should be devolved upon tribunals specially created to take cognizance of them. The Legislature declares the rule which is the same to all; but the degrees of discretion which varying circumstances exact in the application of the rule must constitute a trust necessarily delegated to others. At present all these distinct powers are jealously retained by the legislatures. Their committees sit as courts and take evidence and listen to arguments. So far it is well. At this point, however, instead of framing a general law or dismissing the individual case, they undertake to give a charter to this applicant and to refuse it to that: to pass a special act in favor of this corporation, and to reject it as regards that; to authorize an increase of stock here, and to direct the construction of a new depot there. These are functions which no legislative body can successfully perform; as well undertake to decide every suit at law or to affix the penalty to every crime. Just so long as Legislatures insist on themselves doing work of this nature, just so long will corruption increase and the statute-book fall into confusion.

Thus tribunals should be clothed with all necessary powers, and be put forward as if the members were fully competent to represent the interests of the State with an experience and ability, a knowledge of details, and a zeal in their occupation equal to that ever so conspicuously displayed by the agents of the corporations. Such men could certainly be found; the corporations always have them. Meanwhile the whole subject may be summed up in few words: under a system which permits special legislation, boards for the regulation of railroads are useless; they are, however, indispensable under one which confines itself to general laws.

PRESBYTERIAN UNITY.

A Fitting Commemoration—Five Millions of Dollars for Good Works—Three Millions Already in Hand.

One of the first acts of the United Presbyterian General Assembly, (O. and N. S.,) which met in Pittsburg, Penn., a year ago, (Nov. 12, 1869,) was to enact the following resolution:

Resolved, That it is incumbent on the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, one in organization, one in faith and one in effort, to make a special offering to the treasury of the Lord of $5,000,000; and we pledge ourselves first of all to seek in our daily petitions the blessing of God to make this resolution effectual; and second, that we will with untiring perseverance and personal effort, endeavor to animate the whole Church with the purpose to secure the accomplishment of this great work before the third Thursday of May, 1871.

At the subsequent meeting of the Assembly in Philadelphia this resolution was indorsed and emphasized by the appointment of the following-named gentlemen a committee to carry out its object: W. S. GILMAN, of New-York, Chairman; John Crosby Brown, of New-York; John E. Parsons, of New-York; Benjamin F. Butler, of New-York; William T. Booth, of New-York; Alexander Whilldin, of Philadelphia; George Junkin, of Philadelphia; Isaac Scarritt, of Alton, Ill.; Archibald McClure, Jr., of Albany, N. Y.; Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, Treasurer, No. 19 Cliff-street. The United Church reports a membership of 450,000, with 4,526 churches and 4,238 ministers. The Committee, after mature consideration, adopted the following plan of the work:

To make it easy for every member to pay his or her proportion, the $5,000,000 were divided into $1,000,000 free-will offerings of ten cents each weekly for the fifty current weeks elapsing between June 5, 1870, and May 14, 1871, inclusive. Each offering, when complete, would thus amount to $5, and the whole to the $5,000,000. Any person is, of course, at liberty to subscribe one or more shares of this fund, and some have given nobly—at least one individual having subscribed $50,000 to the fund. A book has been prepared by the Committee in which the names of the subscribers are recorded for preservation in the archives of the Church, and for each offering of $5 or more a certificate with the date and name of the subscriber will be issued certifying partnership in the five million fund of the year 1870, the amount of the donation and the number of offerings covered thereby. This certificate is a very handsome affair. It represents a river divided by rocks and shoals into two streams, subsequently uniting together, and the people who have been sailing along each are seen coming from different directions and meeting at the same church door.

Up to the present date about $3,000,000 have been subscribed, but though the time is short in which to raise the remaining $2,000,000, there are sanguine hopes that it will be realized within the time specified. One million dollars of this sum have been devoted to denominational institutions of learning throughout the land, and $2,000,000 have gone toward strengthening weak churches and providing parsonages. To avoid the expense and delay involved in sending the subscriptions to New-York to be distributed by the Central Committee, the local Church Committees are authorized to distribute, and they have done so, their own subscriptions to the various interests of the Church as they deemed proper, and the names of subscribers, with the amounts given by each only, have been forwarded to the Secretary here for record.

There is, also, in addition to this, a grand project on foot among the churches of this City to raise a fund of $1,000,000 to establish a mission building here, similar to the Methodist Book Concern, on Broadway, only that it will not be a publishing house, that department of the Presbyterian Church enterprises being carried on quite extensively in Philadelphia. A portion of this fund is to go also toward the erection and endowment of the new Union Theological Seminary, which is soon to be transferred up town. About one-third of the sum needed for those interests has been raised, and those subscriptions are steadily pouring in. To create and maintain an enthusiasm among the churches and members in regard to the first-mentioned fund, public meetings have been held in this City, in Dr. HALL's and Dr. ADAM's churches, lately, and Dr. ELLINWOOD, the Secretary of the Fund Committee, is almost constantly traveling, and holding similar meetings in all the large towns in this and adjoining States. The prospects are encouraging, and the Committee have great cause of thankfulness to the Church for its response.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

But little business was transacted at the Exchange yesterday, (Jan. 3,) and the attendance, as is usually the case after a holiday, was light. The only sale effected was one by JAMES M. MILLER, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr., Esq., referee. The transaction was a resale of the leasehold premises known as No. 1 Twelfth-street, on the north-east corner of Greenwich-avenue. The property comprises a house and an irregular lot 25 by about 98 feet, and the lease is for twenty-one years, dating from May 1, 1856, with the covenant of renewal, the ground rent being $175 per annum. The premises were sold subject to these conditions on the 26th day of October last for $6,750, but the purchaser failing to comply with the terms of sale, they were again offered yesterday and sold for $4,800. No other sales were made.

Today, at the Exchange, ROBERTS & MCGUIRE will offer at auction, under an order of the Court, the valuable improved property known as No. 126 Maiden-lane. As a business location, the premises are eligibly situated. To-morrow, at the same place, A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO., in a partition sale to close an estate, will dispose of a desirable residence on West Sixteenth-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues. For Thursday, several sales, principally legal ones, are projected, and the business of the week promises to be of an interesting character, although no particular activity is expected.

Among real estate movements projected in anticipation of the Spring business may be mentioned the purchase of 300 acres of land at Newport, R. I. The property is located about one and a half miles north of the town, situated on high ground and commanding extensive views. It is to be divided into villa plots, and can be sold at prices varying from $1,000 to $2,000 an acre, according to location. Before bringing the project prominently before the public, roads are to be constructed and the lots otherwise improved. The gentlemen interested in the enterprise are well known in financial circles, and reside respectively in this City and Boston. Easy of access and with good bathing facilities, it is claimed for the property that the building sites are fully as valuable as those in the more fashionable quarter of this well-known watering place, where property is held at an average price of $10,000 per acre, and difficult to be bought even at these figures.

As the year opens and business improves attention is called to the advertisements appearing daily in this column of both City and country property for sale or to lease. Parties seeking an investment of capital, or in search of a City or Summer residence, will find it to their interest to consult our list.

7 PER CENT.
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
OF THE
Nashville & Decatur R.R.

This Mortgage is for $2,100,000, or only $17,500 per mile on an old and completed road, showing an established business, from local traffic mainly, more than sufficient to pay its interest as it becomes due, with prospects of greatly enlarged receipts from new connections which are now in progress.

The Mortgage was created for the sole purpose of paying a debt due to the State of Tennessee, on terms which would reduce the liability of the road about $300,000.

Of the bonds issued under said Mortgage, $200,000 are held in Escrow to abide settlement of a claim of the United States; $300,000 have been purchased by the parties in interest, and the balance of $1,600,000 are offered for sale on favorable terms—the security, in judgment of the undersigned, being such as to entitle them to perfect confidence.

First Mortgage Seven Per Cent Bonds.

Interest payable 1st of January and 1st of July, in the City of New-York.

The mortgage is for $3,500,000 on a road 270 miles long, which has been in successful operation for many years. The lien is about $13,000 per mile, which makes it, with few exceptions, the smallest issued on any road in the United States. It was created for the sole purpose of paying off the debt due the State of Tennessee, amounting to $4,117,761 10. An examination into this security will prove it to be one of the best ever offered in this market.

Length of road from Montgomery to Decatur, 163 miles; 107 miles completed, ironed and ties for 15 additional, now on the ground, which will complete 122 miles, leaving but 41 to complete, upon which a large amount of work has been done. Land grant over 200,000 acres; local business good, and through connections unsurpassed.

Passenger and freight cars are now running over this road from Montgomery to Lime Kilns, which completes the AIR LINE to New-York and insures a business more than sufficient to meet the interest on all bonds issued.

First—By the mortgage on the land.
Second—By the guarantee of the State of Alabama.
Third—By the LARGE CAPITAL invested in the road.

Either of which is sufficient to secure the bonds. Price, 95 and accrued interest in currency, up to Jan. 6, after which date the bonds will be held at par.

ARMY RETRENCHMENT.

A prominent member of one of the Committees on Military Affairs says that Congress will do nothing with the army at the present session further than to make an appropriation for its support. Gentlemen connected with this branch of the public service, however, are of opinion that the next Congress will consolidate the Commissary, Quartermaster's and Pay-master-General's Departments and thereby save a large amount of money.

The Mayor and Street Obstructions.

A petition, signed by a large number of merchants and others doing business down town, against the obstruction of Barclay-street on both sides, from College-place to the Hoboken ferry, was presented to the Mayor yesterday. The petition says that the obstructions have become intolerable; that the use of the sidewalks for the storage of merchandise is an unjustifiable interference with the rights of the people to the thoroughfare, and that the use of the sidewalks for such purpose result in blocking up the gutters so as to have a deleterious effect upon the sanitary condition of the neighborhood. The petition closes by asking the Mayor to abate the nuisance. The Mayor then sent the following order to J. J. KELSO, Chief of Police, and to Capt. THORNE:

The street to every ferry must be cleared of all sidewalk obstructions not of a merely transient and temporarily necessary character in a commercial sense. A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor.

THE NEW TARIFF.

Interesting Questions Important to Merchants—Decisions by the Collector.

The new tariff, which went into partial operation at the Custom-house yesterday morning, has thus far worked smoothly, and few knotty questions have arisen which the Assistant Collector or the Naval Officer have not been able promptly to decide. Some of the merchants have, however, been somewhat puzzled by the interpretations which have been put upon the law and the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury, and require some considerable explanation. The statement madeon the TIMES of Saturday morning, of the difficulties that must necessarily be met by reason of the going into operation of such radical changes in the tariff, seems to have been beneficial in instructing the merchants as to the course which they would be required to pursue, of which they were comparatively ignorant before. Yesterday morning, as soon as the Custom-house was opened for business, the statements of merchants, having goods in warehouse which they wished to withdraw, were presented at the proper desks and received prompt attention. The Warehouse Bureau, under Deputy Collector JAMES, was prepared for business, which was dispatched as promptly as possible. The Warehouse Bureau of the Naval Office, under Major HAGGERTY, was also fully organized with an efficient corps of clerks, all of whom were thoroughly instructed in their duties, and nothing was permitted to interfere with the withdrawal of goods.

A question arose during the day in relation to goods which had entered port prior to midnight of the 31st ult. The case was that of the steamship The Queen, which did not come up the Bay until Sunday, though she was below on Saturday night. Some of the consignees of her cargo claimed that, as the goods had not been regularly entered until Monday, they should be admitted under the new tariff. This application was denied, as the law as interpreted by the Courts declares that the date of importation is that on which the vessel enters the jurisdiction of the United States—a marine league from shore. Therefore the cargo of The Queen will have to pay duty under the old tariff. Had her Captain known this he might not have made so quick a passage.

Another question was upon the obligations resting on the importer under the following section of the instructions of the Secretary:

Statements will be required from the importer upon each and every bond affected by the changes in the tariff, and in all cases where any portion of the goods have been passed for withdrawal in the Custom-house prior to the 1st day of January, 1871.

Parties who had purchased from importers goods which were in bonded warehouse desired to withdraw them, but found that they could not be recognized, as they could make no statements which would release the bond. They appealed to the Collector, who was at first disposed to grant the privilege, but upon consultation with Naval Officer GRINNELL and Assistant Collector CLINCH, it was found that by the rules of the Secretary of the Treasury such a course would be radically wrong and have a tendency to overthrow the whole spirit of the regulations. For illustration: A imports 50,000 chests of tea. He places them in bond to await the reduction of duty by the tariff of 1870. He meanwhile has application to sell, and does sell 10,000 chests to B, which are taken out of bond; 20,000 chests to C, which are also taken out of bond, and 10,000 chests to D, who procures a withdrawal permit, but leaves his goods in store, where also are 10,000 chests belonging to the original importer, who has given a bond for the amount of duty upon the entire 50,000 chests, which bond cannot be released until the whole of the goods are withdrawn. The purchaser D, applies at the Custom-house for permission to carry away his 10,000 chests and pay the reduced duty. He is here told that he is not recognized, but must bring a statement from the importer. D feels aggrieved and is disposed to find fault with the Customs officials, but a little reflection convinces him that the regulation is just. If under these circumstances the importer is not willing to go through his books, and make up a statement showing that 10,000 chests of certain marks and numbers were sold to B and withdrawn; that 20,000 chests were sold to C, and 10,000 chests to D, and that there are 10,000 chests in the warehouse—thus completing the number of chests named in his bond—there must either be something wrong, or else the importer is a very unaccommodating sort of person. The Custom-house authorities have determined to require such a statement from "importers upon each and every bond affected by the tariff," &c.

These were the only questions which came up during the course of business yesterday, but doubtless many more will arise before all the goods in bond are withdrawn. It appears that all the high grades of teas and most of the valuable brands of liquors have been sold, leaving only low grades of tea and ordinary qualities of brandies especially, in the bonded warehouse. All these, as well as sugars, coffee and every other article affected by the tariff, will have to be reappraised, reweighed and regauged in order that the duties under the new tariff can be accurately determined.

HOUSTON-STREET MURDER.

Post-Mortem Examination—A Needle Found Imbedded in the Heart—The Wrong Man Arrested.

Coroner KEENAN, yesterday, assumed control of the case of MARGARET A. JONES, the negro woman who was killed on Monday night at No. 250 West Houston-street, by her husband ABRAHAM. DF. WOOSTER BEACH, in his post-mortem examination, made the remarkable discovery that a sewing-needle was imbeddedin the heart, though it was in no way the cause of death. The inquest will be held today.

At about 4 A. M. yesterday a colored man was arrested in Yonkers by the Police of that place, on suspicion that he was ABRAHAM JONES. The prisoner certainly had a very suspicious appearance. His shirt was torn and bloody, and his face bore the marks of a recent fray. The Central Police Office of this City was communicated with, by telegraph, and an answer returned that JONES had not yet been arrested in this City, together with directions to bring the prisoner before the Superintendent, for identification. At a later hour this was done. Capt. MCDONNALL, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, who knows the murderer by sight, was on hand at Police Head-quarters when the prisoner was brought before Superintendent KELSO, and it was at once decided that he was not the man. The prisoner explained that he was set upon by a number of colored men with whom he had quarreled in Broome-street, near Sullivan-street, on Monday afternoon, and was roughly handled by them. He said his name was JOHN EVANS, that he was a waiter, aged twenty-three years, and lived in Stryker's Alley, Brooklyn. He was released.

Annual Meeting of the New-York Historical Society—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the New-York Historical Society was held last evening at the Library, corner of Eleventh-street and Second-avenue, Hon. E. C. BENEDICT in the chair. The Treasurer's report showed that the total receipts of the past year were $12,665 58; payments, $11,-93856; balance, $730 22. Funds—Grovesnor's Fund, $10,000; Josiah Thomas Fund, $300; Wheeler Fund, $1,000; Publication Fund, $18,500, Sons of Rhode Island, $600; Demilt Fund, $5,000, all of which was invested in Government securities. The Librarian's report stated that the total number of books and pamphlets received was 3,111; volumes of newspapers, 75; broadsides, 150; maps, 53; manuscripts, 11; portion of Macdougal papers; engravings, 23; articles for museum, 21; paintings, 52, added to the Bryan collection; additions by purchase of books and pamphlets, 626. From the report of the Executive Committee it appeared that sixty-one new members were added to the Society, twenty were nominated, and its general condition was of a highly satisfactory character. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Thomas De Witt, D. D.; first Vice-President, Augustus Schell; second Vice-President, Erastus C. Benedict; Foreign Corresponding Secretary, William Cullen Bryant, LL. D.; Domestic Corresponding Secretary, William J. Hoppin; Recording Secretary, Andrew Warner; Treasurer, Benjamin H. Field; Librarian, Geo. Henry Moore, LL. D.

The Drawback Frauds—Opinion by Judge Benedict in the Caldwell Case.

The following decision has been rendered by Judge BENEDICT, sitting as Circuit Judge in this district, on a motion in the case of RICHARD B. CALDWELL, the co-conspirator of SAMUEL T. BLATCHFORD and others in the notorious drawback frauds by means of which the Government was robbed of about $1,000,000:

The United States vs. Richard B. Caldwell.—The defendant, CALDWELL, being indicted for bribing an officer of the United States, pleaded that the Court was without jurisdiction to try him, because he was brought into the jurisdiction of the United States from Canada upon a charge of forgery by virtue of the Ashburton Treaty. The claim was that a person extradited for a particular offense can be tried for that offense alone. It was held by the Court that cases of discharging persons arrested in civil cases because of deceit practised to secure the arrest do not apply in cases like the present; that the prisoner is within the jurisdiction by reason of the action of the Executive Departments of the Governments of the United States and Great Britain, and want of good faith in resorting to extradition proceedings is not a subject of investigation in Court, but of complaint between the Governments, and that the prisoner being lawfully within the jurisdiction of the Court charged with crime there committed, is liable to be tried therefor. The plea is vacated with leave to plead not guilty.

Mr. W. H. ASTHON for the defendant; Hon. A. H. PURDY for the Government.

Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest yesterday in the case of Mrs. ANN MCLAUGHLIN, who died at No. 185 Avenue C under suspicious circumstances. The evidence was not direct that the prisoner, EDWARD MCLAUGHLIN, had struck his wife, though he confessed he had himself. The medical testimony was to the effect that death had resulted from erysipelas, superinduced by an injury to the skull inflicted by a blow. The jury decided to render a verdict in accordance with the medical theory, but professed themselves unable to determine the precise method of inflicting the wound. Coroner SCHIRMER then released the accused, and cautioned him against future intemperance.

Mr. BENJAMIN T. BABBIT was last year the fortunate possessor of $42,000 worth of taxable property, and $250,000 of Government bonds not taxable. He was also unfortunate enough to owe various creditors the sum of $356,000, and therefore claimed that he was insolvent so far as taxes were concerned. The Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments failed to perceive the point, and taxed him for $236,000, claiming that the non-taxable property was liable for its share of the debts. Mr. BABBIT appealed, and the General Term of the Supreme Court, yesterday, reversed the decision of the Commissioners.

The following officers for the ensuing year have been elected by Crescent Chapter No. 220, R. A. M.: Henry H. Christie, H. P.; James H. Lambert, K.; Wm. L.
